Favorite Hymns of Late President Are Sung At Park

"And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things have passed away."

BY TOM LEWIS

Today as Warren G. Harding went to his long rest under the waving maples in a quiet cemetery twenty-six hundred miles from this city, where, on Sunday, August 5, he was to have been Orange county's honored guest, thousands of men, women and children, touched by the immediacy of a Nation's sorrow, bowed their heads in unison and gave themselves over for a quiet hour in solemn memorial service.

Typified by song and sermon, services here and throughout the county were scheduled to begin at 1 p. m., when the last touching rites were being performed for the Nation's dead in Ohio. Songs dear to the hearts of William McKinley and Warren G. Harding held prominent places in the various programs.

Sing Favorite Hymns
At Birch park, where ministers of virtually all Santa Ana churches united in conducting services, the late President's favorite hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Nearer, My God to Thee," were to be featured, as was the musical rendition of Tennyson's beautiful poem, "Crossing the Bar."

Led by the Rev. J. H. Hughes, assistant pastor of the First Methodist church, the hundreds of mourners assembled in Birch park were to open the services by singing "America." Miss Dorothy Hurd was marked by the utmost simplicity, the Scriptural readings by the Rev. F. T. Porter, pastor of the First Christian church, were identical with those used by Washington ministers in conducting funeral services for the late President in the capitol. The readings were from the 23rd Psalm, Micah, and the twenty-second chapter of Revelation.

Deliver Addresses
Addresses, based upon the high Christian character of President Harding, were delivered by Judge W. H. Thomas and Attorney L. A. West. Both speakers were scheduled to touch upon the implicit faith of Warren G. Harding in the goodness and guidance of the God he had worshipped throughout life. Preceding the services in Birch park virtually every business establishment in Santa Ana closed, in order that hundreds of employees might avail themselves of the opportunity to pay tribute to the late President.

In addition to open-air services in this city, indoor services were scheduled in many of the churches of the county, including First Church of Christ, Scientist, here, where memorial services conducted by First Reader Carl G. Strook were to begin at 1 p. m.

Last night, at one of the most striking memorial services ever held in Orange county, members of Santa Ana Post No. 131, American Legion, united in an hour of mourning for the departed Chief Executive.

Legion Holds Services
American Legion services included an invocation by the Rev. Otto S. Russell, an address by District Attorney A. P. Nelson, musical selections by Fred Wilde, Robert L. Brown, Miss Holly Lash and others, and a one-minute silence period, followed by "taps," sounded by three Legion buglers. Songs included "The Prayer Perfect," "My Task," and "The Recessional."

Among those who were to have leading parts in the services at Birch park this afternoon were the

Line 4 Miles Long Fails To See Dead

MARION, O., Aug. 10.—At 1 p. m., with a line of people extending more than four miles from the Harding house, the order was issued that no more would be admitted. A cordon of troops was thrown across the column, cutting it short.

The last of the mourners passed the casket and the doors were closed. At this time a dense crowd was massed on all sides of the residence. Boy Scouts aided the troops in holding back the people. Troops began clearing persons without passes out of the alleys and yards around the house in preparation for the coming of President Coolidge. It was announced Coolidge would leave his train at 1:45 p. m.

MARION, O., Aug. 10.—President Coolidge arrived in Marion at 12:30 p. m. today to attend the funeral of the late President Harding.

President Coolidge made no speeches at stations where the train stopped. He barred photographers.

MRS. TINGLEY LOSES COURT CASE APPEAL

(By United Press Leased Wire)
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Katherine Tingley, head of the Theosophical cult at Point Loma, California, has lost her last court battle over the asserted alienation of the affections of Mrs. Irene M. Mohn's husband and she must pay her $100,000 damages.

The state supreme court refused to rehear the case, which it decided in Mrs. Mohn's favor on July 9 after the decision had already been once reversed in the lower courts. Mrs. Mohn charged that the cult leader had not only alienated her husband's affection but "through her influence over him induced him to contribute $275,000 to fund of her religious sect."

Following his short sitting in which thirty cases were disposed of, the supreme court adjourned today until October 2.

Fight Losing Battle Against Forest Fire

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Aug. 10.—A losing battle against the fire in the Santa Barbara national forest was still being waged by rangers this morning. Thirty thousand acres have been swept away by the flames and efforts to fight them back have so far been unavailing. One large ranch in the Santa Ynez watershed is ablaze and several others including many homes, are threatened.

Unity Among Christian Churches Revealed as Aim of Dead Leader

BY LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
MARION, O., Aug. 10.—If he had been spared a little longer, Warren Harding would have devoted himself more fervently than ever to a task, the importance of which he believed no one could overestimate—bringing about a spirit of greater unity among the Christian churches of the country.

To him it was a great wrong that the Christians of America are divided in so many sects and denominations. He believed they ought to eradicate sectarian and denominational lines. How else, he argued, can they achieve in the world the universal brotherhood they preach and profess to work for?

Mr. Harding's feeling on this was strikingly illustrated at Metlakatla, the first of the Alaska settlement he visited. Metlakatla is a small Indian settlement where a few years

Workers In Money Making Plants Strike For Payment In Gold

(By United Press Leased Wire)
BERLIN, Aug. 10.—The Reichsbank closed this afternoon. It was unable to make any further payments.

The dollar was quoted at 1,800,000 marks this afternoon; the pound sterling at 7,000,000 marks. A panicky spirit prevailed. Holders of foreign currencies threw heavy pressure on the market.

Workers in the money-making establishments, went out this afternoon joining their fellow craftsmen who struck at 7 a. m. today.

The strike was largely political, workers demanding twenty gold marks a week and openly expressing hope the metal workers would join them in forcing an issue on labor's contention that it must be paid on a gold basis.

Success of the strike program, it was admitted, might mean overturning the government, for wage payments on a gold basis at this time are considered impossible.

Jail Term Given Man For Alcohol Overload

J. D. Pidcock, 65, signpainter, today was given by City Recorder W. F. Heathman 35 days in the county de-alcoholizer. "Fines have done no good," Heathman told him. "The only thing to do is to put you in jail long enough that your body will have a chance to throw off its overload of alcohol. I sentence you to 35 days in the county jail."

Mrs. Harding Pale On Meeting Friends

MARION, O., Aug. 10.—Mrs. Florence Kling Harding came to a side door of Dr. Harding's home this morning and shook hands with a few friends.

She appeared pale and drawn but showed no signs of nervousness.

Mrs. Harding is scheduled to return to Washington tonight, leaving Marion at 7:30 p. m. on the same train which brought her and due to arrive at 9:40 a. m. in Washington where she will remain for an indefinite period.

ago a single missionary held sway. Later another denomination sent workers to the field and a competition sprang up between the two churches. They became rivals for the membership and contributions of the Indians. Today the two churches stand there, with two contribution boxes asking for gifts.

Mr. Harding saw this. To him it typified what is going on in a larger way all over America.

"That is all wrong, all wrong," said Mr. Harding, as he walked back from the Metlakatla churches to the dock to go aboard ship. "Such things ought not to be, either here or anywhere. Churches ought to get away from those divisions and rivalries. It is not right that Christians should compete for souls like rivals in commerce. It is all wrong, all wrong."

FILIPINOS PAY LAST TRIBUTE TO HARDING

(By United Press Leased Wire)
MANILA, P. I., Aug. 10.—The Philippine Islands, America's most far-flung possession, joined with the mother country today in grieving for the passing of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States.

The ceremonies in honor of the nation's dead were held last night when every dignitary in the island, both native and American, gathered to add his voice to the expression of general sorrow.

Governor General Wood, storm center of Philippine politics, and the hundreds that followed his lead in the impressive program represented every degree of support and opposition to the political passion of the islands has accorded him.

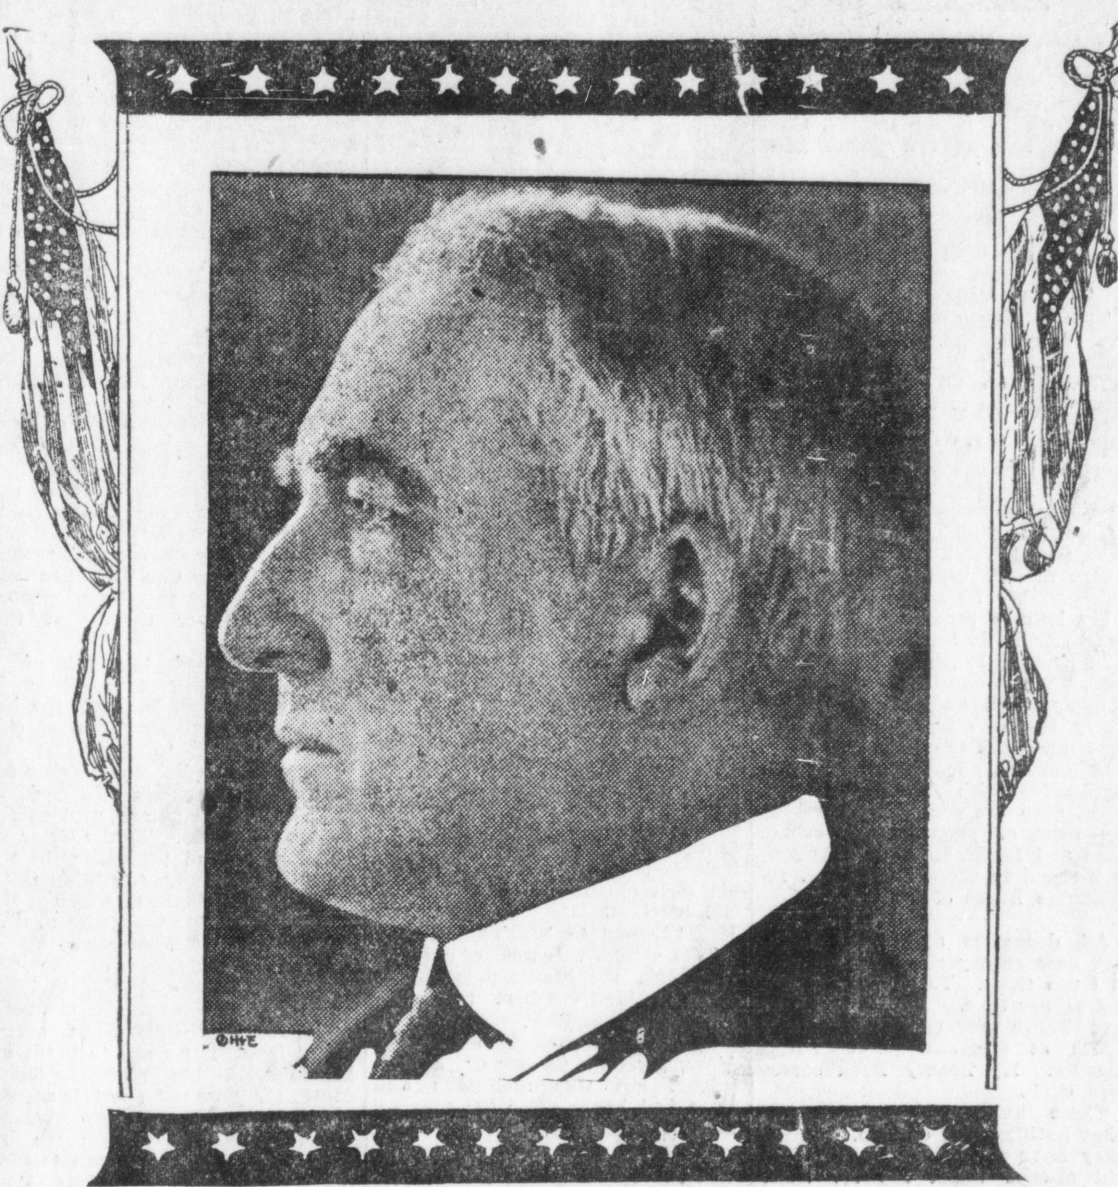

Among those present were Manuel Quezon, president of the senate; Speaker Roxas of the house; Chief Justice Araullo; Commissioner General Read; Admiral Marvel and scores of senators, representatives, supreme court justices, judges, bankers, educators and ministers of the gospel.

In response to a brief talk by General Wood explaining the situation and voicing the general sorrow of the islands, ex-senator Re-foel and ex-secretary Palma, speaking on behalf of the Philippines, rendered heartfelt tribute to the dead president.

Ex-Judge Crossfield and Justice Johnson, the latter a personal friend of the late president, Justice Araullo and British Consul General Harrington, dean of the consular corps, gave brief talks in appreciation of the personality and political worth of the late president.

NATION JOINS IN SILENT MOURNING FOR DEAD LEADER

(By United Press Leased Wire)
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—As a single mourner, the nation stood with bowed head for a brief moment today in reverent respect for the departed leader.

Simultaneously, in great cities and tiny hamlets, the length and breadth of the United States, the rush and bustle of daily life was stilled for a short span and men, women and children stood silent, honoring Warren G. Harding.

In most communities the period of silence, varying from one to five minutes, was observed at that moment when a signal announced that the late President's remains had been laid in the crypt at Marion.

Not only the American people, but all the vast complicated machinery of traffic, commerce, communication and manufacture that has become so much a part of American life—the hum of telephone and telegraph lines, the roar of elevated lines and subways, the whir of machinery were stilled. Silence gave the nation a quiet instant for reverence.

Memorial Services
In many cities memorial services began automatically at 3 o'clock Marion, Ohio (Central time), when the interment took place. Tribute was paid in varying degrees. Some communities planned cessation of activity for the period of silence. Others held religious ceremonies, flag dipping, salutes and listened to speeches.

The observance of the moment of silence was not confined to the borders of the United States. In every far-flung possession or consulate the same simple act of respect was performed.

Ships at sea stilled their engines and passengers and crew took their part in the world-wide ceremony.

In some cities the diners in hotels and restaurants rose and stood at attention for three minutes.

Close Federal Buildings
By proclamation of President Coolidge all federal buildings, including post offices, were closed today.

Manufacturing plants, banks and stores were closed for the entire day in many cities; in others they closed for the afternoon. In New York the stock exchanges were shut down for the day.

Theaters and all other amusement places in New York suspended for the entire day. Several other cities followed suit, while in some theaters remained closed for only part of the day.

Street car service, auto and all other traffic was suspended for from one to five minutes in Washington, Kansas City, Portland, Ore.; Madison, Wis.; St. Paul, St. Louis, Oklahoma City, Pittsburgh, Wilkes Barre, Pa.; New York, Chicago and many other cities. In Detroit all street traffic paused for one hour.

Nearly every railroad east of Ohio halted its trains for one minute. Many roads in the West did likewise.

Newspapers Suspend
All evening newspapers in New York suspended publication for the day. Newspapers in many smaller cities are not publishing today, while in others only early editions were issued. Where the evening papers do publish there was commiseration.

KLAN SENDS HUGE CROSS TO FUNERAL

Red Lillies and Flaming Scarlet Straw Used in Token Sent to Harding Home.

MARION, O., Aug. 10.—A florist's truck drove up to the Harding home shortly before noon and unloaded a fiery cross, five feet high, bearing the white letters on the cross arm, "K. K. K."

A note written in a small hand was signed "Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

The cross was made of red lillies and flaming scarlet straw flowers. It was placed on the edge of the lawn near the dozens of other large wreaths.

Camping 'Buddies' Offer Final Tribute to Departed Companion

MARION, O., Aug. 10.—Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison, Harvey S. Firestone and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kling of Marion drove up to the Harding residence at 10:45 this morning to pay their final respects to the dead friend.

The party had driven from the residence of Mr. Kling, diagonally across Mount Vernon avenue from the "front porch."

They were taken into the Harding home by the side entrance. Just two years ago about this time, Ford, Edison, Firestone and the president were on a camping trip together in Maryland. Ford recalled that event as he talked with friends here.

LAST RITES HELD IN BOYHOOD HOME

Great Throngs Swarm to Little Ohio City to Pay Farewell Respects

(By United Press Leased Wire)

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 10.—His own home folk accorded simple, final funeral honors to President Warren G. Harding here today.

Not with crashing volleys and the wailing notes of "taps," but with the old fashioned, homely ceremonies that might be accorded any leading citizen of Marion, the twenty-ninth President was laid to rest by his fellow townsmen.

It was a home funeral, attended by the home folks of Marion and of Washington and of nearly every state in the Union. The tribute paid today by thousands was a tribute to Harding the citizen and the friend, not to Harding, the President.

Warren G. Harding was the nation's; today he was Marion's and with love's privilege, his widow and aged father and his friends and neighbors claimed the right to lay his body away with their own hands.

Crowd Forms Early.
A column of people standing four abreast, which stretched nearly a mile down East Center street from the Harding home, began moving past the casket early today. At 5:30 a. m. the line was five blocks long, waiting for the door to be opened.

While this line passed—a line in which the mightiest and the humblest rubbed elbows in the equality of reverence—the final preparations for the last rites were being made.

In upper rooms of the Harding home the aged father and the courageous widow made ready for the supreme ordeal.

Mrs. Harding, surrounded by thronging memories of the years when she and Warren Harding were young in Marion, memories of courtship days; days of struggle to make the Marion Star a success; of days of happy fellowship with friend and neighbor, was still inspired by fortitude born of her great love. Though the very walls of the old house must have cried out to her with heart stabbing recollections, she crushed back grief and fought physical weakness and weariness born up by the invisible arms of her love with a strength at which men have marveled.

Mourns For Son.
Dr. George T. Harding, the father, likewise, made a valiant effort to face the parting with calmness. He told friends who had come to comfort him that he wished he and not Warren had gone.

"My boy! My boy!" was his wail, repeated over and over as he prepared to follow that son to the mouth of the grave. At 1 p. m. the house doors were closed. All the world, even Marion was shut out for an hour, while Mrs. Harding and the aged father look their last upon the still face.

When they had left the silent room the other relatives, George T. Harding, Jr., the brother; Mrs. E. E. Remberg of Santa Ana, Calif.; Abigail Harding and Mrs. Heber Votaw, the sisters, with their families, were admitted for their farewells.

Change Funeral Plans.
Slight changes in the funeral plans were announced today. A prayer at the house before the start for the cemetery was added. The Rev. Walter A. King of Columbus, former pastor of Mr. Harding's church here, uttered this prayer.

Softly then the casket was closed—forever.
The members of the cabinet, President Coolidge and the party that went from Washington to Alaska with Mr. Harding, then gathered and afterwards the coffin was carried for the last time from the father's house by the same honor guard of young men of the army, navy and marine corps who watched over it since it was carried from the Palace hotel in San

No Easy Life

But a girlish beauty still
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I have lived 40 years in the limelight—been 32 years a stage star. Have worked night and day slept on cars, boarded at hotels. For nearly five years I served France in the war. I even scrubbed hospital floors. Yet today, at a grandmother's age, I look like a girl of 19. Millions marvel at my youthful bloom. I still play young girls' parts.

That is due to four helps which France gave me—the best beauty help in existence. Now I offer them to all. Every girl or woman who wants more beauty or perennial youth may get them as did I.

White Youth Clay
I owe my baby-like complexion to a new-type clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many use today, but a clay perfected by 20 years of scientific study. A refined clay, white and clean and dainty. A clay with added factors which bring multiplied results. I apply Youth Clay twice weekly, to purge my skin of all that clogs it. To remove the cause of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes. To bring the blood to the skin to nourish and revitalize. To bring that rosy afterglow. Then it firms my skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Many women in 30 minutes seem to drop ten years.

Youth Clay made me a famous beauty. It has preserved my bloom. It will bring you results amazing and delightful and at once.

My Facial Youth
I cleanse my face with a liquid cleanser which I call Facial Youth. Leading beauty experts the world over now employ this formula, but they charge too much.

It contains no animal, no vegetable fat, so it cannot grow hair on the face. It cannot assimilate

In any way with the skin. It simply cleans to the depths, then departs, and all the grime goes with it.

No cleansing cream you ever used cleans like my Facial Youth. This will bring you a new conception of what a clean skin means.

My Youth Cream
This is my cold cream which French scientists perfected. It contains both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to foster the skin's texture.

I apply it nightly, and every morning finds me blooming like a girl. I apply it after my clay. I use it daytimes as a powder base. I and all my stage friends have found Youth Cream the best cream in existence.

My Hair Youth
My hair is luxuriant, thick and lustrous. It has never begun to turn gray. It grows finer every year. This is due to a tonic which I apply with an eye-dropper directly to the scalp. That method does not muss the hair.

It combats hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair roots, stop the growth and reduce the flow of pigment. It stimulates and fertilizes. It has brought to me and to countless friends remarkable heads of hair.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply my helps exactly as I use them. Youth Clay at 50c and $1 per tube. Facial Youth at 75c. Youth Cream at 60c. Hair Youth at 50c and $1 with eye dropper. My Beauty Book comes with each.

These helps will do for you what nothing else can do, I think. They have for me and mine. You will always thank me for them when you know.

THOUSANDS IN CITY MOURN PRESIDENT

Rev. Moffett Rhodes of the Spurgeon Memorial church, who was to preside; the Rev. Otto S. Russell, who was to deliver the invocation; the Rev. H. G. Burgess, benediction; the Rev. F. T. Porter, Scriptural readings, and others. "Taps" were to be sounded by a Boy Scout.

The audience was to join in singing, "Nearer, My God, To Thee," one of the late President's favorite hymns. A male quartette, composed of Maurice Phillips, J. H. Hughes, Melvin Beatty and Cecil Birchler, was to sing, "Lead, Kindly Light." Maurice Phillips was to sing, "Crossing the Bar."

Attorney L. A. West prepared for delivery this afternoon at the park an address which was in part as follows:

Died in Country's Service
"We are assembled at the funeral service hour of our late beloved President."

"At Marion, O., his home town, and throughout all the land, probably in a broader way than ever before, like services are being held."

"For a moment we look in retrospect at some of the great Presidents of our country. We see Washington rising from the surveyor's instruments to be Father and first President. Lincoln in his early manhood splitting rails, Garfield walking the canal tow-path and Harding rising from the print shop to the Presidency."

"It is good to dwell in a land of such privilege and opportunity. "Warren G. Harding is dead. He died in the service of our country, while in this state, where he was known, honored and loved."

"From the Golden Gate of the Pacific to the peaceful Potomac, from fields and factories, workshops and mines, came countless thousands to stand with bowed heads along the way of the funeral train and pay tribute to his name, his high character, his memory and services."

Likened to Washington
"His genius was not of dashing brilliancy, yet his public utterances justified the best traditions of American oratory."

"He was not ambitious like an Alexander or a Caesar or a Napoleon, but was ambitious and great and brave after the manner of our Washington."

"He may not have been the greatest man of all time, but he will be remembered long as one of the best men the world ever knew. "He was a great peacemaker, a great international neighbor and friend to all people and none knew him but to love him."

"He wrought for domestic peace and friendly relations with all governments."

"He did not believe that this nation or the world was to be saved by legislation or treaty alone, but by return to the same faith of our Fathers and the religion of the Christ he confessed."

"He had a vision of the onward coming years and the courage to say, 'I would rather solve a difficulty than embrace a danger,' and in the solution of difficulties laid many grave dangers to rest."

Faith in Coolidge
"The torch he bore fell to the hands of Calvin Coolidge, his Constitutional successor. We rest in faith in him, and that in every great emergency confronting this country, through the Providence of Him who guides the destiny of nations, there has always risen a man sufficient unto the day of danger."

"Our President was great of faith in both God and country and we have assurances that Calvin Coolidge, now pilot of the Ship of State, is a man of like faith. Let us hope the report is true that after the constitutional oath of his high office was administered to him by his aged father, a notary public, he turned after the solemnity of that oath to the quietness of his room for the strength of two hours of silent prayer, and rose from his knees to face his duties at Washington."

"We are but a pulse beat of the great heart of this sorrowing country and what we do and say here will be of but little note in this nation but as we turn from hour of sorrow to face the stern duties of life, let us remember that we are citizens, one and all, of this Republic, and that as the zero hour of danger or duty strikes we will stand by and meet them, faithful to the duties of that hour, as was he whose death we this day mourn."

Judge Thomas' address, prepared to be delivered at today's services, was in part as follows:

Nation Plunged in Grief
"Today the nation is bowing with grief. Just now the body of our beloved President is being lowered to its last resting place among those who knew him best and loved him most, his own folk in Marion, O."

"For the past week a railroad extending from San Francisco to Washington and back to Marion, has been wet with the tears of a sorrowing people. In the language of George D. Christian, who when advised of the President's death said, 'Boys, I have lost the best friend I ever had, and so have the people of America,' I say to you that not only have the people of America, but the whole world has lost a friend."

Mr. Harding, as I view it, literally laid his life on the altar of his country. My heart is full of grief to know that our late splendid leader has answered the last summons and entered on his long sleep."

"I am just wondering if the very last message that he ever gave to the world and which in the Providence of God, was given at the Hollywood Bowl to the Knights Templar of California, is not, after all, a good omen."

Tells Possible Omen
"Mr. Harding laid his life upon the altar of his country in the support of a great cause—the peace of the world. I am just wondering if greater strides in that respect may not be accomplished because of his death than would have been possible had he lived?"

"We know how dear to his heart was the peace of the world; because we know how he was threatened, maligned, misquoted and abused, in some cases, I regret to say, by some of our own citizens have been able to create a doubt in the minds of honest and sincere people, as to whether the causes for which the President labored so sincerely and the great idea because of which I believe he died, were after all what the President thought them to be."

"I tell you, my fellow countrymen, it is about time for the people of this nation to stop, look and listen. It is not enough to tear down unless something better is erected in the place of the structure so razed. Some of us have been working on the wrecking crew for quite awhile. In the name of God, I think we ought to face about and take our places on the construction gang."

Real Message
"Indeed, that pronouncement of his was a real message to a real world in a time when it needs real assistance, from a real statesman, a beloved citizen and a Christian gentleman. Take for instance just one paragraph out of that address."

"We need less of sectarianism, less of denominationalism, less of fanatical zeal and its exactions, and more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practice, and a new and abiding consecration for reverence for God."

"If that is not eternally and everlastingly true, then I misread the signs of the times and misconstrue the life, sacrificial death, the resurrection and ascension of our blessed Lord and Savior."

"It is highly fitting and proper that President Coolidge has appointed this day as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States."

"It was indeed the act of a beneficent power that made it possible for Mrs. Harding, the beloved wife and companion of our late President, to bear up so bravely in this her most trying ordeal, as well as his sister—Mrs. Renshaw—each of our own splendid townswomen. To the giver of every good and perfect gift, we pray that He may continue to bring that comfort which He alone can give to them and to us."

Urges Consecration

"As I see it, in view of the untimely death of our splendid leader and worthy example, standing as he did four square on every moral issue, if we are to profit by his splendid life and sacrificial death, shall we not use this sacred occasion to consecrate ourselves anew, individually to serve in whatever capacity we can toward the propagation and the maintenance of those great principles for which the President died, so that the will of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ may be done on earth as it is in Heaven."

Simple but deeply impressive services in memoriam of the late President Warren G. Harding today drew crowds of people to churches and parks at Orange, Anaheim and Fullerton.

The Orange program was to begin at 3 p. m. in the new auditorium of the high school with the singing of "Nearer, My God, To Thee" by the assembled mourners. The Rev. Father F. Burelbach of the Catholic church was to deliver the invocation. A male quartette, consisting of C. R. Stuckey, Harold Gorton, J. Garraway, and Leon Patrick, was scheduled to sing several sacred numbers. Mrs. F. E. Hallman was to read the sixth chapter of Micah, the favorite verse of the late chief. The Rev. M. D. Pearson was to read excerpts from the last Harding public addresses.

The main address of the afternoon was to be delivered by the Rev. Percy W. C. The audience was to sing, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Taps" by an American Legion bugler was to end the services.

The same simplicity was to mark the services at Fullerton. The program, at the Fullerton high school was to begin at 1 p. m. The audience was to sing "America" after which the Rev. M. E. Bollen was to invoke the mercy of the Almighty. Major J. E. Marks, president of the Orange County Council of the American Legion, was to speak on "Harding as President and statesman." The audience was to join in the verses of "Nearer, My God, To Thee."

The Rev. C. R. Montague was to speak on "Harding as a Christian." The hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light" was to follow his brief talk. The Rev. Walter Thornton took for his topic "Harding as a Private Citizen."

"The Star Spangled Banner" was to be sung by all present and Rev. E. J. Statom was to recite the benediction.

Previously in the morning the children of the city had cast their flowers in memory of Mr. Harding on the stretching green of the high school.

In Anaheim the services were to be held in the beautiful city park, beginning at 1 p. m. Dale Hamilton Evans was to lead the Anaheim Community chorus in "America." The pastor of the Anaheim White Temple, the Rev. James Allen Geissinger, was to deliver the invocation.

The hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," was to be sung, after which C. S. Hartman was to offer a eulogy to the late chief executive. After his talk a squad from the Anaheim post of the American Legion was to raise rifles and fire the last salute for their former leader. The audience was then to take up the words of "Abide With Me." The Rev. A. G. H. Bode, rector of St. Michael's Episcopal church, was to offer the benediction. An American Legion bugler was to sound "Taps."

The Lions club, the Legion post, the City of Anaheim, the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Community Chorus and civic, fraternal and professional clubs and the churches had united in the service.

Asks As To Lot
According to Miss Bertha, an elderly man called at the home yesterday afternoon on the pretext of desiring to buy a lot the sisters own adjoining their residence. He pled her with many questions and learned that her sister was an invalid and that the women were alone. Upon departing he asked if his son might visit them in the evening.

The afternoon visitor and his asserted son returned to the house at 7:30 o'clock, according to Miss Bertha. After some conversation, the elder of the two men asked for a drink of water. He followed Miss Bertha to the kitchen. As she turned on the water faucet, she heard her sister scream.

At the same instant, the man with her grabbed her by the throat and told her to keep quiet. She managed to escape his clutches and rushed out into the front yard. Her screams brought neighbors to her assistance. Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Bills, next door neighbors, were the first to arrive. The men had escaped.

Attacks Invalid
It developed that the reputed son had attacked the invalid sister, gripping her throat with one hand and placing the other hand over her mouth in an effort to prevent her crying out.

According to the women, no demand was made on them for valuables and the men said nothing that would reveal the cause of the attack.

Neither of the women could give officers a description of the men. Miss Hazel Bills, 15, was in the yard with Miss Bertha at the time the man called in the afternoon. She paid little attention to him, but said she thought he was a man of approximately 50 years of age. As near as she could recall he wore a serge suit and black soft hat.

Tired, Nervous Mothers are the direct cause of much unhappiness in our homes; their condition irritates and wears upon the husband and often ruins a child's disposition. This condition of the mother is often due to some weakness which makes her unable to perform her household duties and bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves. Every woman who finds herself in this condition should remember that statistics prove that 98 out of every 100 women who suffer from female ills are helped by Lydia's Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and lose no time in giving it a fair trial.—adv.

PLAN FIGHT ON PENNSYLVANIA BOOTLEGGERS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 10.—Failure of other elements to enforce prohibition in Pennsylvania may lead Governor Pinchot to a policy of apprehending bootleggers by means of his "highway patrol," charged with the responsibility of regulating traffic on public highways.

A corps of 125 men will be placed on the roads of the state shortly to augment the limited number of state police and help relieve the burden of law enforcement the constabulary has shouldered since Governor Pinchot assumed the reins of state government.

Governor Pinchot finds that the highways are the avenues of crime as well as pleasure and peaceful pursuits. To catch the bootlegger, there must be adequate force on the roads that lead in and out of the state.

Plans are being laid now by the governor and his law enforcement officers, the attorney general and the superintendent of state police, to conduct an intensive campaign against bootleggers and crime of every description.

"I am pleased with the progress already made, and thoroughly convinced that the crooks and criminals we are fighting are going to lose and lose completely. I would be a poor American if I doubted that," Governor Pinchot told the United Press instating his position on enforcement.

The effort of the governor to make Pennsylvania dry has been slow and tedious. It was marked at the very beginning with reverses by the legislature and from elements opposed to drastic measures.

Figures compiled by the state police for the first five months of "dry" enforcement under the Pinchot policy show nearly 2,000 arrests. Yet of this number only 241 cases reached the stage of court sentence after going through the process of action by grand juries. One hundred of the 241 were fined and others given sentences averaging from two to six months.

Neighbors Pay Last Tribute To Harding

San Francisco a week ago today to be placed on the funeral train for Washington.

In the final act of the national drama which started at San Francisco and extended across the continent, the body was carried in a hearse to Marion cemetery and placed in a receiving vault.

The setting was one of the most remarkable in the history of a great nation. The center of it was a two-story house on a shady thoroughfare with trim lawns and little cottage sitting side by side with the larger dwellings of the first families.

End of the Trail.
The end of the trail was a beautiful cemetery on the south edge of town.

Every effort was made at the cemetery to give everybody a chance to hear the simple services. Soldiers directed automobiles through the roadways, unloaded them and sent them outside the cemetery again.

The funeral procession from the house to the cemetery was as follows:

The Rev. George T. Landis, Baptist and the Rev. Jesse Swank, Methodist, officiating clergymen.
President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft, Secretary Hughes and Speaker Gillett.

Secretaries Weeks and Mellon, Attorney-General Daugherty and Postmaster General New.

Secretaries Denby, Work, Wallace and Hoover.
Senator Cummins, president pro tem of the senate and Governor Donahey of Ohio.

Mrs. Harding, Presidential Secretary Christian and General Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Harding, senior, and junior, (father and brother of the president), and Charles Harding and Mary Elizabeth Harding, nephew and niece of the president.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Remsburg.
Mr. and Mrs. Heber Votaw, Misses Remsburg, George Van Fleet, Mrs. Biggs.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Kling (Mrs. Harding's brother and sister-in-law).
Roscoe Metzger and family.

Dr. and Mrs. Boone, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, Judson Welliver.

Fifty Cars in Line
There were fifty other cars in line, carrying officials, home town mourners and newspaper correspondents.

A salute of twenty-one guns was fired as the cortege entered the cemetery and three salvos of artillery immediately after the ceremony.

The Rev. W. F. Anderson, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal diocese of Cincinnati, delivered the benediction at the vault.

The choir of Trinity Baptist church, Marion, of which Mr. and Mrs. Harding were members, sang "Lead Kindly Light," one of the hymns Warren Harding learned to know and to love when he lived in Marion. Rev. George M. Landis, pastor of Trinity church, then read from the scriptures. Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth Methodist Episcopal church, then offered prayer.

The casket was then placed within its niche in the vault as the choir sang "Nearer My God to Thee." Later the casket will be put in a heavy stone container, which has been brought here from Baltimore. It will remain in the vault until it is decided what sort of a memorial shall be erected.

The arrangements at the cemetery did not provide for special honors for any of those attending, no matter how distinguished they were.

Just As Americans
The President, members of the cabinet, supreme court, senate and house came not as national figures but just as Americans, joining the throng of neighbors and homefolks.

Although there are eight thousand troops in town, there was no shot or armed forces at any time during the day. The boys in khaki, youths most of them, were here for the sole purpose of handling crowds and supplementing the local police force.

Twenty-four thousand, according to estimates of army officers handling the crowds, looked upon the dead face of the President yesterday as they kept passing until an early hour this morning. There was no sound except the chirping of crickets and the shuffling of feet.

In preparation for the funeral all the down town streets and State street, leading to the cemetery, were freed from motor and street car traffic. Only official cars of President Coolidge's party or those directly connected with the funeral were permitted on those streets. Yet, at the expressed wish of Mrs. Harding, everybody had a chance to pass through the house and view the body.

Thousands Enter City
Thousands of people trooped in to town in rickety buggies and surreys and on foot. Some of the dust-covered pilgrims looked as if they had tramped miles. Mingling with them were fully dressed, smart looking women from the big cities, laughing and chattering with their escorts as though it were a lark. Hundreds slept in the lobbies of hotels and were up at dawn to join in the struggle for food in the restaurants, some of which ran low on provisions.

Those going through the house were admitted by a side door where soldiers stood to assist the twisted cripples, the doddering old folks who stood in line for hours before even getting within sight of the building.

The line filed into an old fashioned, rather small living room with a bay window. In times past it was the scene of happy family reunions, when Mr. Harding came back from Washington for a visit. Today it was crowded with flowers, dimly lit with electric candle-labra and on the right of the col-

'BANANAS' SONG NETS WRITERS $60,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—"Yes, We Have No Bananas," is a $60,000 tune.

When a squaking fruit hawker disturbed the late morning sleep of Frank Silver, leader of a jazz band in a New York feed and noise emporium, he started something. Silver and his pianist, Irving Cohen banded together and, taking a rib from the fruit vendor's plaintive plea, made a life sized song hit. It will net them between $50,000 and $60,000.

The pair already have sold into a million copies and it is casually estimated that another million copies will be sold. Stacks of phonograph records like all the cakes in all the Childs restaurants have been purchased. The music rolls for player pianos pasted together would be nearly as long as an expense account.

It is the first piece Silver and Cohen ever sold. They had written many before. When they took it to a prominent publisher, he offered them the usual $200 advance. They were so sure they had a hit they held out for an advance of $1,000 and got it. They get a royalty of two cents per copy and a royalty from each record and music roll sold. On top of that, they jumped from comparative obscurity into musical fame and are known now as the "banana boys."

It is their first flash—and according to the tradition of Tin Pan alley, where songs are made and broke—it probably will be their one and only.

After writing the song the composers played it for three months in the cafe in which they jazz with their musical comrades each night. It was a tremendous hit. The audience joined in the chorus each night.

Now it is whistled and hummed from the Battery to the Golden Gate.

plete suspension of activities at the time of interment.

Perhaps the most outstanding tribute was paid by the Jockey club, which ordered the race track at Saratoga closed all day. Instances have been few and far between in the past when the tracks were closed for any reason.

There was no baseball. All parks of the major and minor leagues closed in accordance with orders issued by Commissioner Landis. Semi-pro and sand lots also closed on the order of city officials in every prominent community.

For one hour during which the services were being conducted golfers laid aside their clubs, to meet the wishes of J. F. Byers, president of the United States Golf association, of which the late president was an honorary member.

Play in all important tennis tournaments was also called off and all the leading clubs closed their courts to members as the tribute of tennis.

um of mourners stood a casket on a low catafalque.

Take Fleeting Glimpse
The guard of honor, stiffly at attention, still as wax figures, was drawn up beside the coffin. Each person was given time to pause for the briefest instant, glance for a fleeting moment down at the president's face, then those behind came on and those in front found themselves out on the porch. Here, at the steps, two husky young soldiers had the task of helping each person down the front steps. The work was strenuous as the men and women and children came through at the rate of 40 a minute.

Marion today was the nation's center for the second time in three brief years. In joy it opened its gates when from every quarter men began to seek the front porch of an unpretentious home on one of its shaded streets to cheer for the man who had made Marion renowned. In sadness today it received back many of those same men, come now to walk with bowed heads behind the mortal clay of that same man.

Two Girls Are Hurt When Car Runs Away

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—Struck by a runaway automobile at Hyde and Beach streets, Miss Irene Rogers, 2609 Hillegas avenue, Berkeley, and Miss Agnes Myers, 2746 Ashby avenue, Berkeley, were seriously injured.

The two young women were crossing Hyde street, when the automobile, driven by Philip Hahhas, 1912 Fillmore street, backed into them. According to Hahhas, he was attempting to drive up the steep Hyde street hill when his motor went dead and his brakes failing to hold, the automobile rolled back down the hill, striking the two young women at the foot.

Miss Rogers received cranial and internal injuries and Miss Myers bodily injuries.

Miss Myers is employed at the present time by the Federal Land bank of Berkeley, and Miss Rogers is attending the summer session of the University of California. She is a teacher in Glendora, Los Angeles county.

MARSHAL LEGAL BLOWS IN BIG WILL ROW

Although the prospective clash was still more than two months away, relatives contesting for the $51,000 estate of the late Frank E. Carney, of Anaheim, today were marshaling their forces for the battle they are waging against the Carney will and against the Rev. Father Patrick Browne, Catholic priest, whom they accuse of supplanting them in the will by fraudulent exercise of spiritual influence over the deceased, upon his deathbed.

Hearing on a petition filed yesterday in the superior court by George J. Carney and Vera Carney Werner, nephew and niece, respectively, of Frank Carney, who seek to have the probate of will revoked and the will itself set aside, has been set for October 19 at 10 a. m.

Make "Sizzling" Accusations.
The petition of the nephew and niece fairly "sizzled" with accusations against the priest, who, they allege, will receive about $39,000 of the estate, under provisions of the will and their effect under the existing laws of the state. They attack the will itself, on the grounds that their uncle was, they assert, under the influence of opiates and in a semi-conscious condition when he signed the purported will, which is said to have substituted the priest, various Catholic organizations and others in the place of Carney's next of kin as heirs.

Father Browne, they charged, made their uncle believe that unless he willed his property to the church organizations and to the priest, he would not receive his "reward in heaven."

Suit Charges Duplicitous.
Their uncle, they declare, was also made to believe that most of his property thus bequeathed, was going to the organizations, Father Browne and Father Roche being residuary legatees, whereas, they allege Father Browne knew that Father Roche was dead, that Carney himself could not live thirty days after the will was signed, which, under the state law, was necessary or the legacies to the organizations could not be claimed, and that Father Browne, therefore, knew that, as sole resid now showing at the Temple theater.

They are Miss Ruth Clifford and Miss Alma Bennett, both of whom have made rapid strides toward stardom during the past year.Miss Bennett will be seen as the charming, unsophisticated and unconventional daughter of a fisherman while Miss Clifford portrays the role of a daughter of the idle rich, for whose love a talented and successful artist is forced on the downward path of life.Henry B. Walthall depicts the character of the artist and his portrayal is said to surpass anything the talented actor has been seen in in a number of years.This role gives Walthall every opportunity to display his exceptional ability. "The Face on the Barroom thrills, romance and beauty."HER ACCIDENTAL HUSBAND" known members of the cinema world, as Miriam Cooper, Mitchell

ley, Richard Tucker and Kate gagement at the Yost theater tonight.

Heart interest, thrills, suspense, intrigue, and swift-moving action all are said to be embodied in the picture which combines a powerful drama of the outdoors and modern society, and contains the story of two souls, each hating the other, whom fate united in marriage.TRIXIE PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE AT YOSTTrixie Friganza, famous star of the musical comedy and vaudeville world, had left Santa Ana today but little bits of joy which she distributed from "her bag of trix" at the Yost theater last night, still remained behind.Trixie's personal appearance in connection with her motion picture venture, "Mind Over Motor," attracted capacity houses both last night and Wednesday to the local playhouse and on every appearance the star kept her audience in a continual uproar."BURNING WORDS" CLOS-ES AT PRINCESS TONIGHT.The theme around which the photodrama, "Burning Words," is built, a production starring Roy Stewart, which will be shown at the Princess theater tonight for the last time, is that there is no greater love than that of a man who gives up his life for a friend.It is a powerful story of the Canadian frontier and the activities of the Royal Northwest Mounted police on the borderland.In an effort to reform his younger brother, David Darby, for several years a member of the Northwest Mounted Police, gets the youth an appointment in the service. But Ross, the younger brother, fails utterly to respond to the environment of the border country and but for the strong intervening hand of his brother wouldn't have lasted a week in the "Monty" service.It is a strong play of strong men in a rugged country. There is also a strong love theme, built around the characters of the older brother in the Mounted Police and Mary Malcolm, the pretty daughter the factor of the trading post."SHE LOVES AND LIES" AT WEST END TONIGHT.Norma Talmadge has troubles of her own in "She Loves and Lies," the picture which opens at the West End theater tonight. Not only is she called upon to assume the roles of a young actress, a frequenter of Greenwich Village, New York's famous Bohemian quarter, and an old lady of fifty-two, but she must play the latter part so well that she can land a husband of about half her age—and she gets away with it."She Loves and Lies" is one of those plays that interests at the start, grows in suspense and ends with a climax that contains a surprise. Miss Talmadge has the best opportunity of her career for comedy work, and shows that she is talented in this line as well as emotional roles.PRINCESS TONIGHT

Youth First, Then Style

Why follow fashion doggedly year in and year out even when fashion deserts lines that are meant for you? One French designer, Lanvin, believes in creating frocks that are youthful, always picturesque and charming.

For the slim figure there is the slightly bouffant style of dress, which is ruffled and flounced this season. The color and the material of which it is made will do much toward assuring a youthful appearance.

For the more mature figure there is the long bodice waist with the tied skirt. The tiers edged with ribbon or lace will make it the more attractive. Much depends on the trimming—make it as light as possible if you would carry out its youthful lines.

To Entertain at Newport Beach Cottage

A pleasant social affair at Newport Beach will be the entertainment by Mrs. Mary Annin, district duchess president of the Fullerton port Beach cottage, next Friday.

Guests will be Mrs. C. L. Garri-

Bride's Father Reads Wedding Service

Miss Olive Shamel of Huntington Beach, daughter of the Rev. Andrew Shamel, pastor of the Methodist church, will become the bride of Robert Boing of Los Angeles today at her home in Huntington Beach.

The bride's father will perform the wedding services for his daughter.
Miss Shamel is a popular member of the younger set at the beach and has made a wide circle of very dear friends, who will wish her happiness when she becomes the bride of the Los Angeles man.

W. C. T. U.

An annually interesting meeting of the local organization of the W.
C. T. U. will be that held in the Birch park next Tuesday, August 14, at 2:30.

The program will be conducted by the superintendent of scientific instruction, Mrs. Emma Childers.

A contest held in the schools of the county has resulted in an excellent collection of essays written by the children, and prizes offered for these essays will be awarded to the winners at Tuesday's meeting and the prize essays will be read.

R. R. Miller, county probation officer will deliver an address on the subject, "Anti-narcotics of the Day," directed by Mrs. Theo Winbigler.

Success—Genius

What is it causes one man to become successful in life, while another, under like conditions, fails? Is it industry, coupled with character and efficiency, or is it genius? If it is genius, we can do nothing to help the dull man; we poor mortals cannot change the acts of God. But in certainly 70 cases in 100 success in life is not due to genius, but to good conduct; by which I mean industry, efficiency, temperance, fairness, politeness.
The great bulk of the successful men I know have not been geniuses; indeed, I have never known a real genius. Most successful men I know are dull men, like the rest of us, except that they lack a good deal of our carelessness.—E. W.
Howe's Monthly.

Many country club members delightfully entertained at the Or-the club were made bright and at-

and the main club room was filled with card tables.

High score for the evening's play fell to Mrs. Mark Lacy and Mr.

Quiet Wedding Precedes Trip to Southern City

A wedding of interest yesterday was that of Miss Irene Sigler, daughter of Mrs. C. E. Sigler, 207
East Tenth street, of this city, and Ivan Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs.
G. L. Harper, of Huntington Beach.

with Mr. Harper's parents near about two years ago from Omaha, Nebraska, and just preceding her since been ranching at home.

More Easterners Soon En Route to California

Twenty-five new Californians.

That is the number of converts
Mr. E. B. Grillery has made on his trip through the east for the past two months. He has been visiting relatives in the middle west and reports that he has induced twenty-five of his friends to come to California.

Mr. Grillery, who lives at 427 Fruit street in this city, says that the principal topic of conversation in the east is how or when to come to California.

To Give Dancing

A delightful dancing party at the Balboa pavilion tomorrow night will be made up of guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Smith of South Broadway.

Visitor Surprised At City's Growth

Saying that it is impossible to stay away from California, J. B.
Jones, from McAlester, Oklahoma, is spending a few weeks in Santa Ana, where he spent the entire winter three years ago.

Mr. Jones is visiting in this city with his sister-in-law, Mrs. A. A.
Jones and her daughters. He has been in Oregon for several weeks visiting his brother, W. E. Jones, there.

While wintering here three years ago Mr. Jones made many friends who will be glad to learn of his

YANKS WIN ON ROAD BUT LOSE AT HOME

Huggins Pitching Staff Is Invincible Abroad, Takes Bumps In Gotham

BY HENRY L. FARRELL,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—As long as the New York Yankees remain 10 or 12 games out in front there is no cause for alarm when they drop a few games now and then but New Yorkers are wondering why the American League champions have trouble playing ball at home.

So far this season the Yanks have won only a few series on their home lot and their best work was done on the road where they seemed to profit by whatever hostility they may have encountered.

The pitching staff which was almost impregnable in the territory of the enemy has faded off each time the club returned from a trip. In the recent series with the Indians and the Browns and in one game with the Tigers, the pitchers were off and the batting of the team was very feeble on the whole.

The Yanks might be losing some of their big lead if the Cleveland Indians had been able to keep going with any consistency, but when the Yanks slump, the Indians slump right along with them. Many of the experts predicted that the Yanks were due for a slump and a good one, but from the way they have been acting since they returned from their western trip, their own carelessness will bring on whatever slump they are scheduled for.

Against the Indians and Browns it was apparent in the languid actions of the Yanks that they figured they were "in." They took foolish chances in the field and were guilty of terrible base running all through both series.

"Maybe they'll come down to earth if they drop six or seven games and have that lead cut down," many fans remarked after watching them toss games away.

Babe Ruth is the only one on the team who is playing ball as though there was no clutch ahead and the Babe perhaps is inclined to work hard through his desire to win the batting championship of the league.

In the Big Leagues

Walter Johnson singled in the eighth inning, went around on two singles and scored the run on a sacrifice fly that gave Washington a 2 to 1 victory over the Indians.

Another "Johnson stunt" was pulled by Lou North, Card pitcher, who singled in the 15th inning and drove in the run that beat the Giants 13 to 12.

Using up a month's supply of runs, the Athletics mauled the White Sox 21 to 5 and finally won a series.

Old man Adams went to the mound with his head and a glove and pitched the Pirates to 6-2 victory over the Robins.

The Reds increased their losing streak to six straight games when the lowly Braves plastered them, 1 to 0.

Gerber's error back of a couple of hits kicked the props out from under Shocker and the Red Sox beat the Browns, 4 to 3.

The Cubs leaned on the Phils' Couch in the ninth inning, won 2 to 1.

Hoyt, Mays and Pipgrass let the Tigers clout the ball all over the lot and the Yanks didn't win, 11 to 3.

Why did Tex Rickard give up Madison Square Garden and decide to erect a new garden?

It is understood that the owners of Madison Square Garden decided the returns from the rental for the place were not commensurate with the value of the property and decided to tear it down and build a new loft building. The property is located in the heart of the wholesale silk district.

Will Tom Gibbons get any more good matches as a result of his showing with Jack Dempsey?

Gibbons has been offered several matches since his fight with Dempsey but he is tied up now with a fifteen weeks vaudeville contract and then he is going to do some movies. Tex Rickard wants to match him with Floyd Johnson and Jimmy Johnson is trying to arrange a Gibbons-Tunney light heavyweight championship match. Jack Kearns also says that he wants another Dempsey-Gibbons match.

Andy Smith, University of California football coach, today was at San Diego following his trip here yesterday with "Nibs" Price, assistant coach at the state university, and Charlie Toney, former Bear grid star, when he conferred with several members of last year's Santa Ana high school football team.

Smith stopped at St. Ann's Inn last night but left by motor with Price for the Southern city early this morning. He probably will return here Sunday or Monday en route to Berkeley where he will begin preparations for the 1923 football season.

Cigarette Puff Costs 14-Year Prison Term

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 10.—For the pleasure of several puffs on a cigarette, Jose Rodriguez must serve from one to fourteen years in San Quentin prison. He pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary, and was sentenced by Superior Judge C. O. Busick.

Rodriguez burglarized a Japanese store at 1120 Third street, and escaped to a cubby hole in a nearby basement. Patrolman Ed Malone had searched the basement in vain, and was leaving, when his attention was attracted by the sudden glow of a cigarette.

TWO ARRESTED AT BEACH HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 10.—Andrew Pulos and Charlie Taylor were picked up last night on charges of vagrancy. They are lodged in the local jail awaiting a hearing. Today being a national holiday in memory of the death of President Harding they will remain in confinement until Saturday morning.

GOSSIP of the RING

Because there were a few, a very few, examples to prove the point, it has been a generally accepted opinion in the United States for a good many years that gameness was not one of the qualities of European fighters.

Through a hard-boiled idea that a fighter is a "dog" who resigns under punishment, Americans after scanning the notation of "retirements" on the records of European fighters, got the idea that there wasn't a real fighting heart on the other side.

When Carpentier was being steamed up as a candidate for the heavyweight championship three years ago, the skeptics pointed out: "He quit every time he had a hard fight."

When a casual mention was made of Joe Beckett and the chances of the British heavyweight champion against Dempsey, scoffs came back and retorts followed that he was the world's diving champion, without an argument.

There may be timid hearts among the European boxers. There are bound to be because there are faint-hearted ones among the American fighters. No figures are available to back up the point that the ratio of back-stoppers in the European ring is no greater than it is on this side.

There are two good examples to prove the point that in at least two cases America has no sole rights to game fighting hearts.

No gamier, or more stout heart and willing fighters than Jimmy Wilde and Gene Crigui have ever drawn on gloves.

Whatever suspicion might have been directed at Wilde, the former flyweight champion, were not based on anything that could be found on his record, but upon the general assumption that he was British and could not stand the gaff.

Wilde was the last of the world's champions that England owned, and since he was held up before his fight with Villa as the representative of the whole English class, it only follows that he should have been considered the same after the fight and that he proved himself about the gamiest little fellow that was ever beaten up and out of a title.

SANTA ANA, ANGELUS NINES AWAIT CLASH

Locals Determined to Make Up For Defeat In First Game of Title Series

Determined to force the championship series into the third and deciding game, the Santa Ana Edison company baseball team tomorrow afternoon will clash with the Angelus nine at the Los Angeles White Sox park, Fourth and Anderson streets, Los Angeles. The diamond is close to the Santa Fe shops.

If the locals can wrest the melee from the slugging Angelus club, Fred Reyer's crew will have a splendid chance to yet emerge with the Southern California Edison consolation and board a rattler North to mix with the company's Northern California champions.

Hinrichs Off Form. Last Saturday the Angelus outfit hopped on "Dutch" Hinrichs for a total of sixteen blows which gave them a 9 to 7 victory. Hinrichs seldom has an off-day but everything he tossed across looked alike to the visitors.

The big right hander is confident he will recover his usual form tomorrow and set "Red" Burger's gang back on its heels.

Despite the hard-hitting of the visitors it was the breaks of the game and unadulterated "bone-head" baseball that cost the local electricians the fray. They expect to hit their usual stride tomorrow.

Tyrrell Behind Bat. Captain "Tough" Tyrrell will handle Hinrichs' slants with the infield composed of Eddie Cutting at first, "Bambino" Benedict at second, "Flash" Roney at short, and the veteran George ("Jug") Walters at the difficult cushion.

Tyrrell will send Johnny Arambel to center field and select his other gardeners from La Marr Melton, Charlie Nelson, Jack Brady and Johnny Spangler.

A large number of Santa Ana baseball enthusiasts are expected to accompany Bill Deimling's hirelings to the Angel city.

WATER TRANSIT FOR FRUIT IS UNDERTAKEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—Relief for the Pacific coast farmer who has found the transportation problem blocking the way to the successful marketing of his crops is promised by the opening of waterway transportation, to be established promptly between all Pacific coast ports and the ports of the Atlantic by The Ocean Fruit Express, a new and strong ship concern organized at San Francisco.

In a land where millions of acres are capable of producing rich food and fruit crops, development has been held back partly because the tonnage from the fields was held to already have passed the limits possible for transportation by existing rail equipment. The losses of millions of dollars in various districts, charged to rail failure, are gaining annually.

For the relief of this situation and answering the urge of the fruit and vegetable growers, Ocean Fruit Express, with capital of $10,000,000 and headed by some of the most experienced and best known shipping men, fruit growers and bankers of America, has been formed.

Need Is Outlined

It will establish promptly, it was understood, a line of steamers to carry perishable products from the entire Pacific coast to the Atlantic markets. An estimated 6,000 to 10,000 tons will be carried weekly when the system is established, the most complete and modern of refrigeration systems being used so that the fruit will arrive at market in good condition, company officials said.

The water carrier will be auxiliary to and not a substitute for rail service, it was added. A survey of the growing and newly planted crops in coast states indicates that both services will be pressed to capacity to deliver the fruit and vegetables of the coast to the rapidly growing markets of the world, officials indicated.

H. S. Scott, president of the General Steamship company, which has offices in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Vancouver, New York and other centers, has been made president and general manager of Ocean Fruit Express. With him are a directorate and official board which include George Bowles of the American National Bank; Drew Chidester, vice-president and general manager of General Steamship company, and Melvin P. Billups, prominent New York shipping man; Ernest L. Simpson of the well-known New York firm of Simpson, Spence & Young, shippers. Other directors of equal prominence complete the board.

Adequate Facilities
Recognizing the need of adequate terminal facilities at all points, the Ocean Fruit Express has arranged to use the nation-wide service and equipment of General Steamship company and has also allied itself with the Associated Terminals company and the Texas Transport & Terminal company of New York, it was declared.

Captain John Barneson, known everywhere among shipping men, is president of Associated Terminals, and H. S. Scott, president of the new company, is vice-president of the Terminal company. This organization has terminal offices and facilities at many world ports.

The Texas Transport & Terminal company, which will act as Atlantic coast agent of Ocean Fruit Express, has offices and facilities at New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Savannah, New Orleans, Houston and Galveston.

"Well-equipped ground floor offices have been made available at 240 Battery street, San Francisco, and branch offices will be opened at all offices of associated concerns," Scott said.

Aim 17-Day Trips

"The new company expects to prove its value to the growers by giving service under direction of experienced shippers, saving much of the loss suffered by growers in recent years. This loss has run into tens of millions of dollars annually and is increasing as new plantings are coming to bearing. It is reported that Wenatchee valley, Washington, lost $7,500,000 worth of apples unshipped last year because of rail failure, while apples sold at 5 to 10 cents each in markets that will be open to the water service. Load, with a $5,000,000 grape loss reported, and the Fresno district with an even greater loss, are examples of the situation Ocean Fruit Express has been formed to overcome.

"Fresh fruits are now shipped from South Africa to England and New York and delivered in perfect condition. Shipments from Australia have been successfully made to ports as far as Liverpool. The new company will entirely remodel the ships, aiming at a fifteen-to-seventeen-day service from coast ports to New York. Diversion of shipments will be possible at all times through the extensive terminal system allied with the new company."

Edison Honored By Round Table Knights

OAKLAND, Aug. 10.—Jesse J. Dunn of Oakland, international president of the Loyal Knights of the Round Table, has inducted Thomas A. Edison into that order at Newark, N. J., according to word received by the local club. The famous inventor is the second honorary member of the order. Luther Burbank, plant wizard, having been made a member several months ago in Oakland. The order had its inception here several years ago.

ORANGE WOMAN IS TOLD SHE IS WIDOW

Mrs. Jennie Vogel, 146 South Jamison street, Orange, today was notified by local authorities of the death, in San Diego, of her husband, Felix Vogel, who was reported to have committed suicide in the southern city.

Vogel was said formerly to have been a barber in Orange. Details regarding the reported suicide had not been learned here. Besides the widow, he leaves two daughters and a son, the latter being a member of a band at Norwalk.

Coroner S. B. Kelly of San Diego county was holding the body today, pending completion of funeral arrangements.

FINDS FARMING LOOKING UP IN MIDDLE WEST

Business is fairly active in the larger cities, but at a standstill in the smaller cities of Kansas, according to Charles H. Chapman, lumber merchant and city councilman, who was home today from a four-weeks' visit in Kansas.

"Kansas will gather a bumper corn crop this season," the councilman said. "Farmers and business men are more optimistic than they were last year, when there were light crops. Farmers, in particular, are thankful if they can meet expenses and interest, and are living in hope that the tide of fortune will change for the better. They are taking the situation in good spirit, and drifting along anticipating the time when conditions will be better."

"California is in the minds and hearts of everyone. I was surprised at the number of persons who inquired about this state, particularly Southern California. Many declared that they hoped some day to make their home in this state."

Chapman was accompanied by Mrs. Chapman. They had been called to Onaga, Kan., by the illness of Mose Day, a brother-in-law. Since his departure, Chapman received word that Day suffered a stroke of paralysis and was in a very precarious condition.

On the return trip, Mr. and Mrs. Chapman stopped at Yellowstone park for four days.

52 SIGN LEGION ROLLS DURING DRIVE HERE

Fifty-two members today had been added to the roster of Santa Ana post No. 131, American Legion, it was revealed by final reports on the membership contest, made at the meeting of the post last evening.

The team captained by Alex Lacy, and consisting of Lacy, Frank Corey, Wilbur Getty, Captain J. A. Plank, Royce Lantz and Frank Woolston, won team honors, reporting sixteen new members. Each member of the team received a gold Legion button. Wayne Stewart captained the losing team, the members of which failed to secure even one member. The members were fined $1 each.

L. W. (Si) Eaton won the contest for individuals, reporting eleven new members. He was given a Legion gold ring. He was a member of the team captained by D. K. Scott.

With the degree team of the Huntington Beach post putting on the initiatory work, ten members were initiated in the local post last night. They were H. E. Hagan, M. L. McCall, Chester A. Cramer, R. M. Davis, Norrell E. Rose, Frank A. Dane, Perry J. Joyce, Henry S. Oge, Harry H. Williamson and R. M. Foster. Delegates to the state convention at Eureka were not named. Adjutant Clyde Whitney was authorized to issue credentials to all members of the post who will go. So far Maurice Enderle and Horace Snow are the only members who have definitely signed.

Following the business session, the woman's auxiliary was invited to join the post in memorial exercises to the late president. The prayer was by the Rev. Otto S. Russell, pastor of the First Baptist church, and the eulogy by District Attorney A. P. Nelson. Solos were rendered by Miss Holly Lash, Fred Wilde and Robert Brown. The ceremonies concluded with a silent moment and "taps," sounded by three buglers.

Wife Claims Missing Mate Gone to Texas

Mrs. Marion Johnson has lost her husband, according to police report today. She said he was employed on excavation work now being done for the addition to the Grand Central market at Second and Sacramento streets. Last night he failed to report home, she added.

Mrs. Johnson told the police she had learned that Johnson had made the statement that he was "headed for Texas."

Mrs. Johnson asked the police to bring him back.

PLEDGES P. E. MOVE HERE IF CARS MENACE

George McPhee, police commissioner, and W. G. Knox, city engineer, in a conference in Los Angeles yesterday with E. C. Johnson, chief engineer for the Pacific Electric Railroad company, were given assurance that if parking of street cars at the end of the line on East Fourth street was a serious menace to life and property, the condition creating the menace quickly would be removed.

According to Knox, Johnson did not know of the condition existing at the end of the line. He requested the city representatives to make investigations and submit, by letter, recommendations of changes that should be effected. The investigation will be along the line of ascertaining whether the company has sufficient trackage cars that now are permitted to stand at the end of the line from the time they arrive until they depart, McPhee said.

Johnson pointed out to McPhee very essential reasons why the company could not bear the expense of "paving its crossing at Myrtle street and the cost of installation of a needed culvert, the latter said. McPhee expressed his satisfaction at the explanation, and at the next meeting of the council probably will recommend that the expense be borne by the property owners on the street or by the city, he added.

RE-OPEN STATE FARM SCHOOL MOVEMENT

T. E. Stephenson of Santa Ana, and Dr. S. S. Twombly of Fullerton have been named as members of the regional farm bureau committee to represent the farm bureau in an investigation into the establishment of a state agricultural school in Southern California.

Representatives of eight southern counties are to meet in the farm bureau office in Los Angeles tomorrow for organization and for a discussion of the situation. Land for a state agricultural school was bought at Riverside some years ago. Los Angeles interests have been trying to have the site changed to San Fernando.

The regional farm bureau committee consists of one representative from each county bureau and six members at large. Dr. Twombly represents the county bureau and Stephenson is named as one of the six.

WRITER OF JAIL LIFE 'YARN' IS FREED HERE

P. S. Barnes, Los Angeles advertising man, today had secured dismissal of charges that he had operated an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. The case was dropped following Barnes' preliminary hearing late yesterday in Justice J. B. Cox's court.

There was no evidence before the court, it was held, to show that Barnes had been driving the car in which he had been riding, and which was wrecked near the bridge at the entrance to Newport Beach, just before his arrest. Another man and two girls were with Barnes in the car at the time, it was testified.

Police Officer R. H. Barnard of Santa Ana, who was called to the beach to arrest the party and who was the only witness in court yesterday, could not testify to direct knowledge that Barnes had been at the wheel.

Barnes, who had been held a short time in jail following his arrest, was identified as the author of a communication, vividly describing jail life here, which was published in The Register a few days ago.

LAST YEAR'S DRIVE ON RATS EFFECTIVE

As rat killers, Santa Ana householders and officials are a decided success. So it appears from the fact that the little pests, so troublesome about a year ago, have practically disappeared from the city.

These statements were confirmed here today by Dr. John I. Clark, city health officer, when he stated that the campaign conducted by the city officials and the newspapers, in co-operation with residents and business houses of the city, had been successful. The rats had fled the city, he said, terrified by what Santa Ana can do when organized.

"I receive practically no complaints regarding rats now," Dr. Clark added.

Juvenile Court Ward's $5 Pay Ends at S. A.

Benjamin Jacobs, 15, of Los Angeles, who boasts an earning capacity of "five smackers" a day, was halted in Santa Ana while en route to the Huntington Beach oil fields, in search of further financial conquests, according to the local police, who today had returned the lad and a companion, Andrew Miller, 12, to Los Angeles, where Benjamin was found to be a ward of the juvenile court.

Benjamin confided the information regarding the "five smackers" to Officer Sid Smithwick, who picked up the lads here. He was taking Andrew along for company, he told the officers.

Says Woman In Crash Hit Tree, Not His Car

Charles Griset, Tustin rancher, today stated that a report recently filed at the sheriff's office, to the effect that Griset had figured in an automobile collision near Tustin, was unfounded. Mrs. Daisy Van Pelt, Los Angeles, was driving the other car, said to have collided with Griset's machine, he said.

"There was no collision with my car, at all," Griset said, "and I would like to correct the report, as I don't want to appear as being, possibly, a reckless driver."

"I was approaching the intersection slowly and had right of coming rapidly, so I stopped, out of the way. The other driver saw my car, too, apparently, but the woman seemed to lose control of the wheel. Her car was in no danger of colliding with mine—there was eight feet of room in which to pass—but her car went off the road beyond the intersection, striking a gum tree. That was the collision."

BOOK AGENT IS GIVEN JOLT BY FREE LIBRARY

Commendation of the service being rendered to county schools through the Orange county free library was extended today to Miss Margaret Livingston, librarian, by R. F. Mitchell, county school superintendent.

"The county free library service has been of inestimable value to the schools here," Mitchell declared. "Each school, instead of being compelled to keep its library needs within range of the comparatively few dollars allowed each year for that purpose, has had the full run of the state library."

"This means that the school has been able to have frequent change of text books when desired. The teacher has been relieved of the long and arduous task of reviewing all new school books published. The county free library has been provided an authoritative review of new texts."

Facilities Work.
"The teacher also has been free of the book agent. In the past there were many reports of books purchased for which the school had virtually no use. A smooth-tongued agent was responsible."

"Library work necessarily has become extremely complicated. It is not to be expected that the school teacher, constantly on the alert for new methods of teaching and subjects to be taught, also can find time to qualify as an expert school librarian."

"But through the county free library, the schools here have received the advantages of expert library service."

Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, recently issued a bulletin, addressed to Milton J. Ferguson, state librarian, in which he expressed appreciation of the work being done in the schools by the county free library service.

State Approval Given.
His bulletin said:
"May I express appreciation of the splendid work the California state library and the county libraries are doing? Particularly do I wish to commend the service that is provided under the law authorizing the co-operation of county libraries with the schools."

"I have watched the development of this work during the last ten years with a great deal of interest and with growing enthusiasm. The plan of co-operation has won its way by sheer force of efficient service. At first, county superintendents and school trustees were hard to convince. They felt that the library fund granted to the various districts could be used to best advantage by themselves. The librarians of the various counties have proved beyond doubt that the library funds are best expended when they are turned over to the county library. The popularity of the service is indicated by the fact that 2200 elementary and high schools in the forty-two counties having county libraries have availed themselves of library service. I have been surprised to find in many instances that the service rendered by the county library libraries to the various districts has brought a return to the co-operating districts more than six times greater than the return that could have been secured if the library fund had been expended by the individual districts. "Be assured that the state office approves heartily of the work you are doing."

CAFE TRIO PLEAS KFA WLISTENERS-IN

Last night's KFAW program was given by three members of Ray Kellogg's orchestra from the Lighthouse cafe, Balboa. It was impossible for the entire personnel of the orchestra to play at The Register studio, but the complete organization will be offered in the near future.

Spencer Hill, piano; W. A. Alexander, banjo, and Truman Dawes, saxophone, made up the splendid trio which gave a liberal program of the late dance hits, as well as several old favorites, played by request. One of the hits of the evening was "The Bucketshop Blues," written by Alexander and Kellogg.

Listeners-in were favored with the following program, from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m.:

"I Cried for You," banjo solo, played by Dawes, accompanied by Hill; "Bucketshop Blues;" "That Red Head Gal;" "The World's Waiting for the Sunrise;" a medley arrangement of "Whispering;" "Marcheta;" "Buddy;" "You've Got to See Mama;" "Some of These Days;" a medley arrangement of "Yes, We Have No Bananas;" "When Will I Know?" and "Bebe." This program was made possible for KFAW through the courtesy of Messers Hill and Tudor, director of the Lighthouse cafe.

BURGLAR IN LONG BLACK COAT FLEES

A lone burglar, draped in a long black coat, was surprised and frustrated in his attempt to enter the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mason, 2333 North Main street, at midnight last night by vigilant neighbors, according to police report today.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Crozier at 2337 North Main street were aroused, they told the police, by suspicious noises about their neighbor's vacant house. The Masons were staying overnight at Los Angeles.

When they stepped to the window, they said the burglar turned his flashlight upon them, then vanished. They notified the police immediately. The only missing article reported was a small caliber rifle from the Mason garage.

The house now occupied by the Masons was burglarized several months ago, when it was the home of Harold Yost. Much jewelry and other valuables were taken at that time, police records show.

The average age of the Presidents of the United States at the time of death is 69 years.

Law Can't Touch Woman In 'Minor Offenses' Says Court Dealing Blow

FALL STYLES RESPOND

Old Law Holding Man Boss Of Household Declared Entirely Antiquated

By GEORGE HART

Today's anti-Volstead formula: "Let the wife do it."

She can get away with it, where friend husband couldn't. Speaking of liquor transactions, that is.

It is a simple matter to beat the law as it stands at present, according to a recent interpretation in Justice J. B. Cox's court, where a woman accused of having liquor in her possession was freed by a jury on the ground that a wife cannot commit a misdemeanor, or minor offense, because her actions are adjudged as being under the direction and command of her husband.

"Built-ins" Sighted

Accordingly, the authorities to day were looking for an outburst, or some such eruption of lady bootleggers, with the fall styles running to hip pockets in feminine ready-to-wear.

Stills hooked up to kitchen ranges or the water heater were viewed as immediate developments among the built-ins for some modern homes.

All that friend husband need do is keep out of sight while the raid is on. Merely entangle another built-in feature—trap door—so it seems.

Here is the way the authorities dope the future:

Wife is arrested. Goes to court. Was acting under direction and command of friend hus-

—And Santa Ana Grew

Compact Stories of Pioneers Who Built Enterprises on Firm Foundations That Tidal Waves of Depression Could Not Wash Away—The Future Was Anticipated.

MATHIAS NISSON

BY TOM LEWIS

What a steady, heartbreaking grind it was—this thing of winning the unceasing fight with the semi-desert, and paving the way for the great and prosperous Santa Ana that is!

Spend an hour with Mathias Nisson, in his splendid home on his 21-acre tract at 2500 North Main street, if you would learn some of the intimate details of the struggle that began more than forty-seven years ago and has continued throughout the years.

"When I came to Santa Ana from Illinois in 1876," Mr. Nisson said, "this Main street section was a wilderness, given over to cactus, willows and mustart. Between Santiago creek and Anaheim it was a regular wasteland. Few of us would have given $10 an acre for that land. Today that land, through the medium of irrigation and hard work has been placed in the very first rank of real estate bargains. If you buy an acre of it you pay a real price."

In those days, however, North Main street, now one of the most beautiful thoroughfares in Southern California, was a winding, tortuous mud road, dusty in summer and all but impassable in winter.

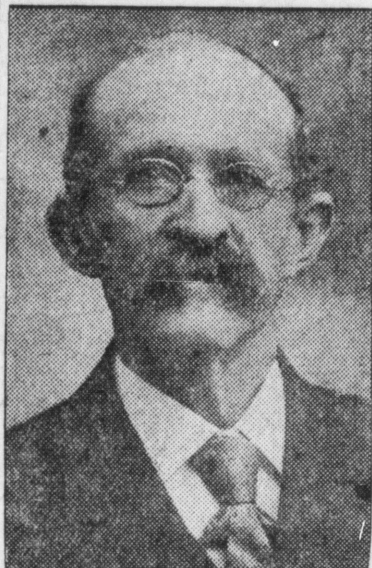

Would Have Had Fears

"If you had told me," Mr. Nisson said with a little twinkle reminiscent of his experiences of those days, "that a house and lot would bring $7500 not so very far from where my home is located, I probably would have advised your friends or relatives to have you examined by a competent doctor. I would have had fears for your safety."

The fact remains, nevertheless, that houses and lots are selling for $7500 near the Nisson home and, in some cases, for as much as $10,000.

But when Mathias Nisson, a poor boy looking for a chance to make good in this sparsely-settled valley, came to Santa Ana, land was a thing that few seemed to want.

"Fifty dollars an acre was considered high," Nisson said, when asked what values prevailed when he began buying a little property in the community that he had decided was to be his future home.

"Mind you, I didn't buy any land at first," he added, "for I was too busy trying to make a living. It was hard work, this thing of farming land on shares, and the profits were mighty small. For four years I worked on various farms, in and near Santa Ana, but all the time I had my mind set on getting a small section of land."

Buys 21 Acres

"Finally, in 1880, the opportunity came, and I bought the 21 acres where my present home is now situated. This land, now in the select residential section, cost me fifty dollars an acre, but it has cost me a great deal more to keep it and improve it."

"A few years ago my taxes on this 21-acre tract were $13. How much do you suppose I pay now? One thousand dollars!"

Nor is this all. Mr. Nisson paid something like $12,000 for paving, lighting and other modern improvements, all of which have come within recent years.

"I do not begrudge this money,

BUNKOBROKERS HIT BY $5000 BOND CLAUSE

New Law In Effect August 17 Designed to Protect Unwary

An additional safeguard to California investors and for dealings in the purchase of securities with brokers or brokers' agents is made possible by an amendment to the Corporate Securities act passed by the 1923 legislature, according to an announcement made at Sacramento today by Edwin M. Daugherty, commissioner of corporations. This amendment provides for the filing of a bond of $5,000 by each broker "at the time of filing an application for a broker's certificate."

The amendment will become effective August 17, and it is held that all applications filed for brokers' certificates on that day and thereafter must be accompanied by "a good and sufficient bond for $5,000 payable to the state of California to be executed by said applicant together with a surety company, and to be approved by the commissioner of corporations."

Makes Broker Liable

The bond is to be conditioned upon the faithful compliance with the provisions of the law by the broker and by all agents representing him and it shall provide that, upon failure to comply, the broker shall be liable to any and all persons who may suffer loss by reason thereof.

On and after August 17, if a broker defrauds a client in the sale of any securities, he may be held liable under his bond. Likewise, if the client is defrauded through an act of the broker's agent, the broker is held responsible, and the injured client may collect on the bond.

"This amendment," said Daugherty's announcement, "passed both houses of the legislature without a dissenting vote. It was the unanimous decision of the members of the assembly and state senate that innocent purchasers of securities, defrauded by brokers and their agents, should have some recourse to the possibility for the recovery of their money."

Protects Confidence

"Under this amendment, if the crooked broker defrauds a widow of the insurance left to her or an aged couple of their life savings or robs a sick or injured veteran or other person action may be brought against his bond to recover the amount of the loss."

"In my opinion this amendment is one of the most important in relation to blue sky legislation since the enactment of California's original Blue Sky law. It will give to the confiding investor a chance to recover the money of which he has been defrauded and it also will act as an effective deterrent to those brokers and agents who are inclined to leave their conscience behind when taking money away from people in the sale of worthless securities or in selling securities beyond their legitimate value."

Here Is Provision

The provision referred to reads in full as follows: "At the time of filing an application for a broker's certificate, the applicant shall deliver to the commissioner of corporations, a good and sufficient bond for five thousand dollars, payable to the state of California, to be executed by said applicant, together with a surety company, and to be approved by the commissioner of corporations. Said bond shall be conditioned upon the faithful compliance with the provisions of law by said applicant and by all agents representing the said applicant, and shall provide that upon failure to so comply the applicant shall be liable to any and all persons who may suffer loss by reason thereof."

Under this provision, the commissioner of corporations will take no action on any application for a broker's certificate unless said application is accompanied by a good and sufficient bond as described, it was stated.

Says Husband Faked Suicide, Asks Decree

REDDING, Aug. 10.—According to the divorce complaint of Mrs. Esther M. Taylor of Redding, Leonard G. Taylor, her husband, was cruel. She alleges that he flew into a rage a few months ago and pretended to kill himself by cutting his throat. He fell to the floor and pretended to be dying, though he did not draw a drop of blood.

Mrs. Taylor avers that on her return from Sacramento, where she had gone to see a physician, her husband hit her a powerful blow with his fists. He since has failed to provide for her.

The couple were married in Redding in August, 1910, and separated last Christmas. There are three children. The wife asks for alimony of $25 a month for each child, for $200 that is needed to meet current wants and $150 to pay costs and attorney fees.

NEW ICE HERE BAFFLES HEAT ONSLAUGHTS

Warm summer weather, with its attendant worries to housewives as to how the refrigerator on the old screen porch may best be kept filled, with the least expense possible, today was being worsted here in its endless battle against man and science.

In other words, a new kind of ice, manufactured by a new process that hinders to a certain extent its decomposing tendencies, was being stored in local ice chests by the Santa Ana Commercial company.

Not only does this system of manufacture partly balk the rays of Old Sol for a time, but it also enables ice to retain its chilly qualities even after the sun has broken through the cold exterior of the ice block and started its deadly melting work, according to J. E. Winn, foreman at the company's plant.

The new ice, while of better grade and stamina, also benefits the manufacturers as the product may be made with less operating expense and the use of less machinery, Winn said.

"The ice formerly manufactured here, and at virtually every other Southern California plant," Winn said, "was made from distilled water only."

"The present system calls for what might be termed a mixture of 'hard' and distilled water which eventually is reduced to soft water, much like Eastern rain water."

"A treatment of alum clears this water and other systems remove all lime from it. The product also goes through filters which contain three grades of sand, rock and gravel."

Miss Mildred Murphy of this city is rapidly achieving an enviable reputation in the world of science.

She is now a member of the New York state commission for mental defectives, the first of its kind in the United States. She is one of the five certified psychologists in the United States and holds her master's degree in abnormal psychology from Columbia university, New York.

"Just exactly what do you do?" is the question Miss Murphy is asked almost daily.

Here is an interview in which she has given an explanation of the work she is doing.

"The work I do, is known as psychometric testing," said Miss Murphy, explaining that she tested persons to discover their native capacity and their acquired ability.

Treatment Guided

"The object of this testing is to guide agencies, courts, hospitals or schools in the treatment of patients, and in the placing of children or adults in school or in work."

"So important and so necessary this work has become that the New York state legislature, in 1920, established a state commission for mental defectives."

"Leading physicians and trained psychologists make up this commission, which has under its direction the establishment and operation of free mental clinics in every city in New York of more than 5000 population."

"These clinics are free. Each one has a trained nurse, trained social workers and the services of a trained psychologist."

Returns September

"Schools, hospitals, physicians, courts, institutions of all kinds and even private individuals find the services of the clinic available to them at all times."

"The members of the state commission travel about, inspecting the work of the clinics, giving tests, holding consultations, and directing the work generally."

"This is the work Miss Murphy will resume when she returns to New York, September 1, with the commission."

"I love my work, and it gives me a sense of accomplishing something, when I realize all the good this commission can do," Miss Murphy continued. "But it was a long, hard road to travel."

Training Varied

She told of the years of hard study and experience, the volunteer work, the research work and all of the hard things which are necessarily incident to such training.

Miss Murphy did volunteer testing in hospitals and schools, and even taught the ungraded room in a school for several months to get experience for her present work.

In the ungraded rooms in the schools it is sometimes necessary to teach the children how to talk," she added. "We have even taught them to stand, and to perform the simplest habits."

"Abnormal persons, mental defectives can imitate almost anything along the line of manual work if they are given time. We have examples of persons who through the proper testing and consequent direction developed into skilled workmen."

Graduates Here

Miss Murphy told of testing 760 patients for dementia praecox, the cause of which is still unknown, she said, and which is incurable.

LARGE PROJECTS ASSUME DEFINITE SHAPE AS HALF OF TOTAL ALREADY PAST

Santa Ana, with all its previous building records smashed, is rushing forward on a construction program that should carry it to the six-million-dollar mark by December 31.

This possibility loomed here today when W. S. Decker, city building inspector, while refusing to revise upward his estimate, made earlier in the year, of $5,000,000 worth of building here this year, admitted at the same time that there were great possibilities of this figure being found $1,000,000 short by the end of the year.

When Decker closed his books yesterday, he pointed out, the value of building, as set forth in permits issued since January 1, was $3,433,118. The figure for the entire year of 1922 was $3,771,831, he pointed out.

"I have not altered my forecast," Decker said. "Early in the year I predicted that Santa Ana would carry out a construction program in 1923 calling for an expenditure of $5,000,000. This figure stands, so far as I am concerned."

12-Story Structure Assured

At the same time, however, if a number of large building projects, now taking more or less definite shape here, are actually begun by the end of the year, then, of course, our construction total, augmented by what might be called the routine activity will go to the six-million-dollar mark or even beyond."

Decker, who because of his position is kept well-informed as to contemplated improvements in the city, stated that a banker who was in close touch with the situation had informed him that the proposed ten-story office structure on the site of the old Grand Opera house, at the corner of Fourth and Bush streets, was an assured undertaking. Construction might be expected to begin within the next few weeks, Decker was told. His informant added that office space on the first five floors on the proposed "sky-scraper" had been rented.

New Theater Planned

"Another undertaking that will be under way here in the near future," Decker said, "will be the theater building that C. E. Walker plans, to replace the present Princess theater on Main street, between Third and Fourth streets. The plans for this are fully developed and every preparation has been made to begin razing of the present building and begin construction of the new at the earliest possible opportunity. This, I understand, is scheduled for early in September."

The Santa Ana branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings bank still is negotiating for a site in this city, I hear on reliable authority. I am told that executives are negotiating for a certain property. This bank proposes to erect a suitable building. While I have no information on the subject, still I believe that its size will be not less than four stories and possibly more."

Definite figures as to these and various other proposed projects are of course unavailable. The structure at the corner of Fourth and Bush street, according to conservative estimates of a man conversant with the plans, should cost approximately $750,000.

"What the cost of the proposed new Princess theater will be is also unknown to me, but I should say that this will involve an expenditure of not less than $750,000, and possibly more."

Burglar Taken from Train Wearing Loot

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 10.—Clad in a suit, shoes and shirt he had stolen from the home of Benny Richert in Galt, Fred Wilson, alias Jones, 20, of Madera, was taken by Deputy Sheriff M. V. Robbins and Ed Brady from a passenger train when it stopped at Brighton.

The officers had been notified Wilson was aboard one of the trains en route to Sacramento and that he was clad in khaki clothes. The deputies, however, recognized the suit Wilson was wearing as the one that had been stolen from the Richert home, and placed him under arrest.

Wilson later confessed and returned one of the watches he had taken during the burglary.

Miss Murphy's thesis work was along this line.

"I do not feel that I have reached the top," Miss Murphy said. "I am ambitious now to become a member of the national commission for mental hygiene. This commission will ultimately establish clinics in towns in the United States where there are courts."

A graduate of Santa Ana high school in 1917 and of the University of California in 1921, Miss Murphy has been studying in New York for the past two years. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Madden of North Broadway.

Miss Murphy recently was elected to membership in Sigma Delta Epsilon, a society of graduate women scientists, all of whom are continuing research work.

ROW OVER PARK MAINTENANCE IS AT END

The problem of providing the park custodian with assistance for caring for the parks of the city temporarily was disposed of at the adjourned meeting of the city council at 5 p. m. yesterday, when arrangements were made for two men of the street sweeping department of the city to devote two or three hours each day to assisting the custodian.

The arrangement will continue until such time as a permanent solution may be offered. George Wells, a member of the park commission, said that a number of men had offered to take the position of custodian and employ the extra help necessary without additional cost to the city.

Probe Sanitary Cost

It was the belief of Wells and members of the council that a man could be found who would assume the full responsibility for $150 a month. At present, with extra labor, costs of the park were $229 per month.

In discussing the park situation, it was brought out that it probably would cost $10,000 to eliminate present unsanitary conditions at Birch park and add facilities that are needed. Wells said the commission would like to change the band stand to the south side of the park, effecting a combination of comfort stations with the stand.

Fire Engine Bid Accepted

Pointing out that the park fund was limited to cent on each dollar of assessed valuation of property, the council informed Wells that only $1600 would be available this year for park operations. The amount the past year was $1200.

The contract for providing the city fire department with a new fire pump engine was awarded to the Seagraves company. Charles H. Chapman cast the vote deciding on this equipment. J. W. Tubbs and George McPhee opposed C. H. Killen, Nat Neff and Chapman. It is understood Tubbs and McPhee favored the La France engine.

In the award for supplying fire hose, the Pioneer Rubber company was given the contract for 3000 feet of Victor jacket hose, at $1.10 per foot, and the American Supply company for 2000 feet of blue line hose, at 90 cents.

Hog Cholera Breaks Out In Fallon Region

FALLON, Nev., Aug. 10.—For the first time in six years hog cholera has been found on a farm in the Fallon district. Nine animals died and fifty-three were treated by state veterinary officials.

Farmers on adjacent ranches have been warned to watch their hogs closely and immediately report any outbreak of the disease. The owner of the animals was unable to explain the source of the disease.

Woman's Leg Broken When Hit By Truck

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 10.—Rose Azavedo, aged 60, a cannery worker of 502 T street, received a broken leg when she was struck by an automobile truck driven by M. Marks of 3018 Fourth avenue. Police investigating the case reported they believed the accident to be unavoidable.

The woman was taken to the emergency hospital by Patrolmen A. J. Taylor and Jack McCarthy.

band. Set free. Goes home and puts on fresh brew.

Warning issued.

Officers hunt up friend husband. "Why, no," he says. "I wasn't there. Didn't know anything about it. Under my direction and command? Stuff and nonsense. Prove it."

Officer scratches head. Law says wife can't testify against husband. Husband twirls thumb and walks away. Goes home and sips wife's brew.

The law is most embarrassing to the enforcement program, officers admit. They say it is a relic of the old common law, in which the husband was supposed to be the boss of the household.

Relief they admit, is right. Times have changed. But the law hasn't.

Whether Justice Cox's interpretation would stand fire in the superior court—well, that's not determined. So those who are inclined to take Justice Cox's decision too literally, the officers point out, had best take no chances.

NISSON TELLS HOW SANTA ANA GREW

of course," he explained, "but you understand what it means to have a 21-acre ranch in the residential district. My property remains intact, just as I bought it years and years ago."

But there have been many changes in that property since Mr. Nisson wrested it from the cactus and the mustard wastes. At first he tried grapes, hauling the product all the way to Anaheim.

Courage Held Out

When the grapes failed his courage still held up. He grubbed out the vineyard and tried his hand at other agricultural pursuits. Realizing the possibilities of walnuts and Valencia oranges, Nisson spent many weary days in re-arranging his land schedules in order to take care of his steadily increasing nursery stock. Tree after tree sprang into being. As the years went by these increased. Today he has some of the finest walnut and orange trees in Southern California.

"If you can get water, you can grow almost anything on this soil," he declared, "but subdivisions have come along so rapidly that the one-time mustard fields and orchards are fast being covered with modern homes and beautifully laid-out grounds."

"As I look back over the early development that resulted in the present up-to-date city, I feel deeply grateful to the men and women of the pioneer period who had the faith and the determination to work for a better water supply for this valley."

Praises S. A. V. I. Ditch

"If you were to ask me what I consider the most important phase in the development of Santa Ana valley, I think I should answer without hesitation: The building of the great ditch by the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company."

For fifteen years Mr. Nisson was a director in the irrigation company, serving as president of the board for several years.

"Water reclaimed this semi-desert wasteland," he declared, "and those of us who underwent the privations of those trying earlier years will not soon forget this important work."

And water, Mr. Nisson adds, is the one thing that the people of Santa Ana and this great valley must have, and in abundance, if they are to be prepared to take care of the great population increases of the future.

"Santa Ana grew in the first place," Mr. Nisson concluded, "because men and women of vision and initiative had the courage to carry on for the things they felt we needed. She will continue to grow as long as that vision and that initiative animate our people. But we must not leave water out of our calculations."

"Water we must have, and the time is at hand when we must act, rather than talk. Not only Santa Ana but the entire Santa Ana valley must realize the vital importance of this question. Without an adequate water supply Santa Ana cannot hope to grow as she deserves."

A SHADOW AND HEALTH

A SHADOW—As your work is the shadow of your ability, as your relations with society is the shadow of your soul, so is the degree of your health and happiness the shadow of your spine. THE SPINOGRAPH.

HEALTH—The joy of the well, the right of the unwell. THE SPINOGRAPH—The Spino-graph is a photographic film on which has been cast a shadow of your spine, much the same as the shadow of your hand is cast on the wall. The spine shadow on the film gives the minute detail of the parts of the patient's spine. When measured at different points, the movable parts compared, the accurate size of the exit of the nerves from the spinal cord between the parts of the backbone are seen; showing the decrease in size of the exits or holes causing a pinching of the nerves which make you ill. When the holes or exits have been adjusted to normal size THE RIGHT OF THE UNWELL TO HEALTH IS REALIZED.

MANUFACTURERS IN SOUTHLAND SHOW GAINS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—Unprecedented expansion in the business of Southern California manufacturers in lines that are affected by federal taxes, was established by a special report of revenue receipts for the fiscal year which closed June 30, forwarded to Washington today by Collector Rex Goodcell.

In point of growth, the manufacture of oleomargarine has set a record. Collection of the manufacturers' tax for 1923, compared with 1922, shows an increase of 153 per cent. The tax paid represents manufacturers' sales of 2,954,500 pounds in 1923, as against 1,164,400 pounds for the same period of 1922. While the oleo tax receipts of this district show a gain of 153 per cent, the collection of the tax for the United States as a whole has shown a steady decrease since 1920, it was shown.

Receipts from the manufacturers' tax on automobile trucks for the fiscal year 1923, were $120,726, compared with $53,009 for 1922, a gain of 127 per cent. This tax represents sales of $4,024,230 for the 1923 fiscal year, compared with $1,763,600 for the 1922 period.

Soft Drinks in Increase
The soft drink industry also registered a record. For beverages made wholly or in part from cereals and containing less than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol, manufacturers paid a tax of $13,540 in 1922 fiscal year; as against $59,064 in 1923, a gain of 336 per cent. The tax paid in 1923 represents sales of 23,625,600 pint bottles, compared with 5,310,400 in 1922.

Unfermented fruit juice taxes increased 267 per cent over 1922. The tax paid called for 3,410,000 pint bottles in 1923, as against 940,000 in 1922.

On fountain syrups used in manufacturing soft drinks, $18,065 in taxes was paid by the manufacturers in 1922; while it jumped to $71,617 in 1923, a gain of 296 per cent.

Still drinks containing less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol brought in taxes that showed an increase of 213 per cent over 1922. This calls for manufacturers' sales of 2,862,400 pint bottles in 1923, compared with 912,000 in 1922.

Manufacturers of carbonic acid gas paid a tax for 1923 that indicated an increase of 1458 per cent over 1922.

Receipts from the tax paid by manufacturers on candy indicate a gain for 1923 over 1922 of 39 per cent and sales at manufacturers' prices of $7,425,000.

Other Lines Shown
Sales of documentary stamps, which must be used on capital stock issues and transfers and almost every form of business transaction and conveyances, were $1,161,478 for 1923; compared with $776,998 for 1922; a gain of 49 per cent.

Manufacturers of hunting and shooting garments furnished a 37 per cent increase.

Bowling alleys and billiard halls paid $61,630 in 1923; as against $50,710 in 1922, a gain of 21 per cent.

Tax paid on admissions to cabarets increased from $65,871 in 1922 to $65,570 for this year, a gain of 24 per cent.

From dues and memberships in country and golf and social clubs $331,208 was collected; compared with $255,366 for 1922, an increase of 29 per cent.

Theater seating capacity has increased 23 per cent during the year ending June 30, as indicated by special taxes paid.

Quality Shoe Store
BEISSEL AND NEWCOMB

103 East 4th St. SANTA ANA 111 E. Center St. ANAHEIM

UNIQUE SHOP IN S. A. REPLICA OF HOME

A few years ago a man who knew what he was about went to the owners of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York, pointed out a "hole in the wall" in the massive structure, and told the "big boss" he wanted to rent that space.

"What for?" demanded the main gazabo. "It will cost you a lot of money."

"S'all right," was the reply. "I expect to make a lot of money."

"From a hole in the wall?"

"Yes, from a hole in the wall. Select people like select service. I'm going to sell flowers to your guests."

Is Novel Store.

That man, according to authentic records of the case, paid a mighty stiff figure for the space, but his trade was assured and he made money from the very outset.

This, in a manner of speaking, summarizes the venture of Fred Newcomb and Pete Beissel, enterprising shoe merchants, who plan to open, at 111 West Fourth street, one of the most unique establishments of the kind in Southern California.

This little shoe store, occupying a space inconceivably small, but remarkably well-furnished and equipped, is "squeezed in" between the crowding, larger structures, but it is far from being inartistic.

Known as "Newcomb's," but operated as a unit in the Beissel and Newcomb chain, the tiny emporium, with a fitting room 33 by 13, will have a voice distinctly its own.

New Stock Seen.

That voice, according to Fred Newcomb, will shout, "Service and Quality!" in clarion tones. Although the store has a length of less than seventy-two feet, it is ideally located, next to the remodeled store of W. A. Huff & Co., and it will differ in many ways from any similar store in this section of the state.

When you go into "Newcomb's" to look at a pair of shoes it will be just like buying shoes in your own home. Hardwood floors, mammoth mirrors, subdued lights, soft rugs and kindred accessories will suggest the solid comfort of your own reception room.

But that isn't all. You will note something odd here. The chances are there will be no shoes in sight.

You will seat yourself on a comfortable brown, mahogany chair, matching the mirror frames and the other furnishings, and then you will stick out your foot and say, "Shoes, please."

In Good Location.

And then Fred Newcomb or Charlie Widney, catering to your needs in this nifty little reception room of a shoe shop, will hike into a rear room, where some 12,000 shoes, or 6,000 pair, will be neatly stacked, row after row. When you have been fitted, all shoes will be returned to the rear. At a neat mahogany counter in the rear an alert attendant will wrap your parcel and collect the necessary fee.

"Despite the fact that we pay a considerable rent for what may be termed a modern, down-to-the-minute hole in the wall," said Newcomb, "we will handle the very best, nationally-advertised shoes at reasonable prices."

"We will specialize in shoes for men and women, in one of the most strikingly original shops in the Southland."

"We would rather have a hole in the wall, in the right location, than 100,000 square feet in the wrong district."

The shop will open next week.

Miss Ladieu was a former resident of Tustin and is the daughter of Rev. Ladieu, former pastor of the Advent Christian church here. She intends to return to her home in Oakland in about ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Kirk and family spent Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Persy Meeker at the Palisades. Mr. and Mrs. Meeker are old friends of the Kirks and are staying at the beach for some time.

Mrs. Ernest Cadz returned to her home on the Irvine ranch last week. She has been staying at the home of her father, Morgan Page, while her husband has been employed near San Juan Capistrano.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wallace are contemplating a trip into the Yosemite valley soon. Mr. Wallace who has been employed in the C. O. Artz grocery will not return to his work there.

Franklin Holbrook left for San Diego this morning.

The Junior Missionary society of the Advent Christian church will hold a sale of home made cakes and pies tonight on the lawn of the church. Ice cream will also be sold by the girls. The sale will start at 6 p. m., and the proceeds will be used in making up the pledge of the girls to the budget of the church, which is to be used for missionary work.

Mr. Badley, of Santa Ana, was baptised by Evangelist E. W. Shepard at the services held Sunday night. Mr. Badley was influenced to take the step through the work of the Gospel auto under Evangelist Shepard. The Unafon, a musical device for the auto, recently arrived.

In Making the Selections of these NEW SILK DRESSES

We had three special objects in view — first STYLE—second STYLE—and third STYLE. How well we succeeded may be judged by the individuality expressed in each beautiful model—Yes, they are different—they have that added "touch" so hard to describe—yet so easily seen, which distinguishes them from the general run of "ready-mades." It's a real pleasure for us to show these.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN HANNON, wealthy ranch owner, his blind wife, BELLE, and their beautiful daughter, VAL, live happily together in Hannon's wonderful ranch home, Paradise. Red Star is the king of the Red Brood of horses owned by the master of the ranch. In a game at HUNNEWELL'S store, VELANTRIE from the Border wins LOLA SANCHEZ, who offers herself as a prize for the BRIDE MAN, man of mystery. Velantrie sends Lola home to her father.

Val attends the Fourth of July celebration at Santa Leandra. Escorted by the Paradise cowboys in the afternoon, Val watches the races where the Red Brood wins honors. At the dance in the evening Val dances the first dance with TOM BRISTON, the foreman of Paradise, who loves Val sincerely.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

THESE strangers came in unostentatiously and stood in a bunch, somewhat close together. There were nine of them, all clad in good garments, the best that money could buy in a wider market than the rangeland owned. Their soft fine boots were stitched in colors, their hats were very wide and ornamented with much silver after the fashion of their kind across the line.

They stood quietly and watched the dancers, and in their midst stood one who was of a different mold. Tall, slim, fine of feature and form, smiling, his reckless face a sparkle with the joy of youth in music and motion, this man was not so guardedly alert, and he carried his hat in his hand. Thick black hair waved back from a handsome brow, white with the gleam of the sweatband, sign manual of him who rides much in the open.

His blue eyes under their black lashes roved over the dancers with a bright bold glance. As the couples drifted out again Lola Sanchez, a living flower in her black and scarlet, came down the room in the arms of a big blond boy, her small face upturned, her coquette's heart playing the old game in her dusky eyes.

And then—the boy swung her past the door and she looked up full into the smiling face of the stranger.

"Velantrie!" she breathed to her self.

"What?" asked the boy, but she did not hear.

From that moment she forgot him utterly.

When the dance ended Lola stopped, as if by accident—something about the tiny slipper that encased her light foot—bent and straightened it—close by the door as she rose, quick as a willow, and released, she looked into Velantrie's eyes and her own were eloquent.

"Master!" she murmured in Spanish, so low that none but he caught the soft word.

"Who's th' chap by th' door?" the blond boy asked suspiciously, but Lola looked up innocently.

Which one, she asked, and the suspicion died.

The newcomer did not dance. They had come because Velantrie gave the word, because he chose to look upon Santa Leandra at her merry-making, and that was all.

Velantrie did not dance either. There was none whom he knew upon the floor save and except the small girl who called him master, and he only smiled with amusement as he watched her.

But Lola Sanchez's quick little brain was working and she meant to change that very soon. Therefore she sent the least of her followers, a meek brown Mexican, unnoticeable in the crowd, to whisper something in the fiddler's ear.

And then the music stopped, the crowds drifted to the benches, and the fiddler was tuning his fiddle to another key.

He tucked the fiddle in his neck and began abruptly to play—and no one called this number.

Wild, swift, beautiful music it was, Spanish to the core. It lifted and swung and at regular intervals there came a thrum of the bass that sounded like the stroke of a foot upon the floor.

And then, softly, swiftly, like a leaf before a wind, Lola Sanchez came drifting down the floor alone. From somewhere as if by her hand, the rangeland scattered for another year.

It was mid-morning when they rode into Paradise, and far off Val shaded her eyes with her hand and searched the familiar place.

"Boys," she said at last, "there's something wrong at home. The riders are all in and hanging round the corals. There's dad—he's waiting for us."

There was something wrong at Paradise, indeed.

John Hannon met them at the corner of the great house and his face bore signs of strain. His dark eyes were cold and narrow.

$20,500 Damages Won Against Jailed Banker

OROVILLE, Aug. 10.—A judgment for $20,500, less offset amounts, in favor of the plaintiff, was the decision handed down by Judge Gregory in the case of H. P. Spencer, receiver of the First National bank of Gridley against J. A. Schafer, cashier of the bank, now serving sentence in the federal penitentiary.

The amount of the offsets admitted by Spencer totaled $2,942.25. A $5000 note claimed by Schafer as an offset, which he made out to the Gridley bank, who sold the note to the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco, and which bank still holds the unpaid note, was not added to the amount of the offset, because as the note is unpaid by Schafer he was accordingly denied right to give it against the receiver on the $5000 note and is not entitled to the credit demanded by him.

CONGRESSMAN WILL VISIT HARBOR SOON

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 10.—Congressman Phil D. Swing will visit Orange county and the Orange county harbor in the near future, according to a letter received from him by Harry Welch of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce.

It was the original plan of the harbor chamber to have Congressman Swing present at the associated meeting of Orange county chambers which is to be held on August 29 at Costa Mesa.

If it is possible, the county harbor chamber will attempt to have the congressman present at the meeting.

The letter received from Congressman Swing follows: Harry Welch, Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce, Newport Beach, Calif. My dear Mr. Welch: I am leaving today with my naval committee for an inspection of government naval projects and will probably not be back in my district until the last of August. At that time I will try and fix a definite date for my visit to Orange county and will hope for your co-operation in arranging my itinerary. With best regards, I am Yours sincerely, (signed) PHIL D. SWING.

Freight Line To Harbor Endorsed

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 10.—A resolution addressed to the State Railway Commission, endorsing and urging the granting of a franchise for a freight line to the Newport Harbor Transportation company, was passed last night by the board of directors of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce in meeting at the Newport Harbor Yacht Club.

Harry Welch, secretary, was instructed to draw up a resolution to the state body, stressing the necessity of an adequate freight service to cater to the needs of the county, and to promptly distribute goods received into the harbor over the company's barge line between the harbor and San Pedro.

A franchise for the same route was granted some time ago to another concern, but the resolution to the commission will incorporate the fact that the present service is inadequate, even to serve the present local needs.

The transportation company, it was explained, finds itself receiving larger and more varied shipments with each barge arrival, and is sorely in need of a service to the interior of the county and to adjacent territory being served by its water line.

It is understood that the commission will meet to pass upon the franchise request about the 21 of this month.

STAGE COMPANY PERMIT CAUSE FOR WRANGLE

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 10.—First indications of a bitter fight which may last for a considerable length of time came to the surface last night at a meeting of the board of directors of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce when it was reported that the application for franchise of the Laguna Stage Line would be vigorously "bucked" by the Pickwick Stage line which now operates to that point.

The Laguna people, Mr. Lodge and Mr. Rothbom, have made application for franchise, and have also completed arrangements with the Pacific Electric whereby traffic from Los Angeles to Laguna can be routed via the P. E. to Balboa, thence across the bay by ferry, and from there to Laguna by their stage line.

This method would shorten materially the distance between Laguna and Los Angeles, and would also provide a diversified journey of rail, boat and stage between the two points.

Additional complications were foreshadowed when it was stated that James Irvine, Jr., had intimated that he would refuse the Laguna Stage line people the right to travel the improved highway which he installed across the Irvine property at his expense.

"I understand that the Pickwick people have announced their intention to make this a fight to the last ditch," the informing member of the directorate stated to the assembled group.

WIRE COMPANY TO EMPLOY BARGE LINE

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 10.—A shipment of 200 tons of copper wire, consigned to the California Wire company at Orange, is understood to be awaiting a barge for transportation to Orange County Harbor at Newport.

The huge shipment of copper wire is said to be awaiting the arrival of a bill of lading.

This shipment will constitute one of the first "mixed cargoes" coming into the harbor.

Besides the wire, it will be made up of various other articles for inland Orange county towns.

Hot Doughnuts Go Quickly at Newport

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 10.—Next to fishing off Newport pier, the most popular sport at this city is eating hot doughnuts.

Two years ago, W. C. Burris, who runs an "eating stand" on the pier, began making doughnuts. He installed an elaborate machine with doorknobs and thingamajigs, and made a few doughnuts daily.

The smell of the doughnuts even beat the fish smell and floated about in the air, causing visitors and residents to develop an unusually strong gnawing feeling in the innards.

Today, after two years' successful operation, Mr. Burris is making from fifty to seventy-five dozen doughnuts daily, and cannot make them fast enough for his increased trade.

Every morning about 11 o'clock, the line forms at the eating stand, and Mr. Burris spends the next half hour selling the "fried holes."

Yesterday morning within ten minutes, three men came up to the stand, sat down, made preparations for eating, and then said: "Gimme six."

It had been said that if a five hundred pound fish were being landed when a whiff of the hot doughnuts should reach the fisherman's nose, the fish would stand a good chance of getting away, but the doughnuts—well, they're made to eat.

Residents of Balboa who have lived here the year round for a long time have always said that in the winter months the climate at Balboa is noticeably more agreeable and warmer than inland.

"It seems that Orange county's playground should be made available for the county twelve months a year," another man remarked.

It is expected that official action by the city council and by the chambers of commerce will be taken regarding the matter within a short time.

PLAYGROUND WORK IS GREAT SUCCESS

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 10.—"A great success," is what City Recorder Byron Hall has called the children's playground here.

About four months ago, the chamber of commerce solicited subscriptions to furnish a playground for the children of Newport Beach.

Equipment costing about $650 was installed, and has now been in use for over three months.

Six picnic sheds, six swings, two slides, two "circle waves," one rocking swing and a travel ring constitute the equipment at this time, according to Mr. Hall.

"Formerly every Fourth of July we used to spend several hundred dollars on a celebration. This year we decided to invest the money in a playground, and I believe we made a mighty good investment," Mr. Hall remarked.

"The rope on the swings is supposed, with normal use, to last a year."

"We have replaced the rope in the three months, and have found it advisable to keep a supply of inch hemp rope on hand," he said.

Mr. Hall is enthusiastic over the project. "It is the best thing in the world for the kids," he smilingly said.

Plans to enlarge the playground and to cover the entire beach front to Thirty-sixth street will be made at some later date, it was said.

Newport Beach is the only city on the coast, it is said, which provides so large a children's playground.

PARLIAMENT DISSOLVED.

DUBLIN, Aug. 10.—The parliament of the Irish Free state was dissolved yesterday, in preparation for the general elections to be held next month.

NEWS ITEM

Poultry raisers hereabout have been awakened in the middle of the night of late by squawking which seemed to come from hen houses or poultry corrals. It is further alleged that investigations the next morning showed a somewhat decrease in the number of fowls. While police seem to be baffled, one very promising clue has been followed. No names were given but a certain chef in one of the city's markets is being closely watched. Baffling!

"Make Daley's a Daily Habit"

The average housewife is very little posted on the cost of general merchandise, except those items which are nationally advertised products. The big advantage in dealing with Daley's is that all of the merchandise is sold on a legitimate percentage of profit and no advantage is taken of the speculative market. Price declines are followed immediately and while it may be true that our price is a cent higher occasionally on one particular item that some other dealer is offering as a special, there may be twenty-five items on which we are lower.

Therefore, it behooves the thrifty housewife to trade regularly at Daley's, because she can feel assured that no advantage will be taken on her or prices at any time.

SECTION THREE

PIGEON MEN TO HAVE EXHIBIT IN SANTA ANA

Written for The Register by C. C. Clark, Pigeon Fancier, of Fullerton.

FULLERTON, Aug. 10.—A group of Orange county pigeon fanciers have taken up pigeon racing as a hobby and it bids fair to become one of the leading sports of Orange county.

The pigeon fanciers have some of the best racing pigeons in California and many of the birds have made the 500-mile fly. They are now training their young birds to San Diego and the birds make the 100 miles in two hours and twenty minutes. The racing pigeons owned by the Orange county fanciers are United States Army stock and all of them have long flying records.

The war department is encouraging the breeding of homing pigeons, and it is the intention of the fanciers to have Ray R. Delhauer, civilian pigeon expert of the army, come over and give them a talk on the training of racing pigeons. Mr. Delhauer has charge of all the government owned homers in the United States.

Pigeon racing has been one of the leading sports of Europe for centuries. The king of England has one of the finest lofts in Europe and the king of Belgium has the largest loft of racing pigeons in Belgium. When the larger races in Belgium are held it takes a whole train of twenty-five cars to haul the baskets of racing pigeons. The race in which the European long distance record of 1000 miles was established was flown between Rome and England.

American fanciers have outdone their brothers, due, partly, to the fact that this country affords longer stretches of unbroken country to fly over although bounding in dangers of desert and mountains. The long distance record of 1700 miles was established by Thomas Bronlette of Springfield, Mass., when his racing homer flew from Denver, Colo., to Springfield, Mass. Many American birds are now flying 1000 miles in two days.

It was not until the World War that the great usefulness of these birds was called to worldwide attention. They had been used in many emergencies before but nothing centered attention upon them as did the war. The Associated Press has obtained some of its biggest news beats through the use of pigeons. Explorers cut off from communication with the civilized world have employed them to get messages home. Time and again during the war these little winged conveyors "got through" with their messages when barages and smoke screens had severed every other means of communication. Records show they were ninety-seven per cent efficient, and that is a higher average than was reached by any other means of communication used by the Signal Corps.

"Cher Ami" Praised
It was a homing pigeon named "Cher Ami" that brought the first news of the location of the "Lost Battalion" in the Argonne battle. This bird was badly wounded, but carried the message safely to its loft and lived until about a year ago. It is now mounted on a gun in the Smithsonian institute at Washington. Several of these world war birds are now at Ross Field, Arcadia, Calif. One, "President Wilson," on the morning of November 5, through heavy rain and fog, and with his leg shot off, arrived at his loft with an important message. This was his second flight on the front and he made the twenty miles in twenty-one minutes.

Another war hero bird is named the "Mocker," who, with his eye destroyed by a piece of shrapnel and his head a welter of clotted blood, homed in splendid time from the Beaumont front, early in the morning of September 12, 1918. This bird carried messages of the greatest importance and gave the location of several of the advancing heavy batteries which were doing terrible execution on the artillerymen to silence the enemy guns within twenty minutes.

"Spike," another hero bird, has a record of carrying of fifty-one messages without being wounded. There are also several German captured birds at Ross Field. Over 50,000 pigeons were used in the World War.

No marvel of science can explain how a racing homer confined in a basket and carried hundreds of miles in a closed express from their home can find their way back. They rise high in the air, making several circles and then strike out for home, perhaps hundreds of miles away.

This year at the Orange county fair there will be about 100 racing homers on exhibition and efforts are being made to have Ray Delhauer, pigeon expert of the army, give several lectures on government training and night flying.

Through the kindness of Lieut. C. P. Kane, commanding officer at Ross Field, the war department has been requested to send a pigeon exhibit to the fair and to give special premium of racing homers as prizes. This exhibit will consist of the year hero birds, mobile pigeon loft that was used in France and forty or fifty of the long distance racers, together with timing clocks, training baskets, message tubes. This exhibit will be in charge of Sergeant E. C. Taylor, who will be glad to answer any questions about the government birds.

Chapter of Micah Read as Favorite Of Late President

ORANGE, Aug. 10.—The following is the sixth chapter of Micah, the favorite chapter of President Harding. Mrs. F. E. Hallman, of the Orange Woman's club, read this Scripture at the memorial service in Orange this afternoon. In it Israel is charged with ingratitude and the way to restoration is declared to be through righteousness, not by sacrifices. The eighth verse was one of the favorites of the late president:

Here ye now what the Lord said; Arise, contend thou before the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice. Hear ye, O mountains, the Lord's controversy, and ye strong foundations of the earth: for the Lord hath a controversy with his people, and he will plead with Israel.

O my people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? testify against me.

For I brought thee out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of servants, and I sent before thee Moses, Aaron and Miriam.

O my people, remember what Balaak, king of Moab, consulted, and what Balaam, the son of Beor, answered from Shitim until Gilgal; that ye may know the righteousness of the Lord.

Wherewith shall I come before the Lord and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old?

Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousand rivers of oil? shall I give my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?

The Lord's voice crieth unto the city, and the man of wisdom shall see thy name: hear ye the rod, and who had appointed it.

Are there yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and the scant measure that is abominable? Shall I count them pure with the wicked balances, and with the bag of deceitful weights?

For the rich men thereof are full of violence, and the inhabitants thereof have spoken lies, and their tongue is deceitful in their mouth.

Therefore also will I make thee sick in smiting thee, in making thee desolate because of thy sins.

Thou shalt eat but not be satisfied; and thy casting down shall be in the midst of thee; and thou shalt take hold, but shalt not deliver; and that which thou deliverest will I give up the sword.

Thou shalt sow, but thou shalt not reap; thou shalt tread the olives, but thou shalt not anoint thee with oil; and sweet wine, but shalt not drink wine.

For the statutes of Omri are kept, and all the words of the house of Ahab, and ye walk in their counsel; that I should make thee a desolation, and the inhabitants thereof an hissing: therefore ye shall bear the reproach of my people.

Seal Beach Girl

Entertains Friends

SEAL BEACH, Aug. 10.—Miss Elizabeth entertained the members of the Epworth League and other friends Tuesday evening at her home on Eighth street.

Games and music filled the hours with pleasure and dainty refreshments were served. Invited guests were Norma and Doris Reed, Melba Thomas, Laura Neldig, Margaret and Mary Harrington, Margaret Parkhurst, Salome and Fanny Van Blarcome, Leah Whitley, Ida Shupe, Bernice Garrett, Hazel Galvin, Rachael Bullock, Lennie Hocking, George Schaffer, Edward Galvin, Henry Bennett, Walter Shupe, James and Jack Mullen, Billie Richards, David and Donald Morris, Donald Steen and the seven Camp Fire girls from Cudahay, who are spending a week in Seal Beach.

Thelma June Turner made the trip last week from Mississippi to Seal Beach and will be with her father, Cooper Turner, until October.

Mrs. Ross of Fresno is spending some time in Seal Beach and will be joined by her husband and her father, Mr. Dutcher, next week.

Mrs. Weaver and daughter, Dorothea, and two brothers, and Mrs. Fennish of Los Angeles came down for a two weeks' outing.

Mrs. Heaston and two sons from Nevada are spending their vacation here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Proctor and Miss Annie Bierhaue leave Friday for two weeks in their cabin, Su-Lu-An.

Figure this: If you spend all day trying to sell something, and sell it, it has cost you to make the sale whatever your time for the day is worth. The same sale could be made without waste of time. How? By a classified advertisement in The Register.

PICKING OF FRUIT AT MESA TO START

COSTA MESA, Aug. 10.—The season for Hale peaches and Bartlett pears is just commencing here. The fruit this year is of an exceptionally fine quality, some examples weighing as much as one pound. The prices this year are very good, running about five cents per pound, wholesale. Most of the sales are being made to Orange county people, who seem to appreciate the good quality and the nearness of the production point of the fruit.

Sells 5-Acre Tract
Mrs. M. Bremer has sold half of her five-acre tract on the boulevard between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets. She still retains the north half on which is erected a garage. The purchaser was Mr. Fleming of San Dimas. He intends to put through streets, curbs and subdivide in the near future, his plan being to build a bungalow court on the lot.

Mr. TeWinkle, owner of a large mercantile establishment at Taft, was the purchaser of a lot, 40 by 140 on the boulevard between Eighteenth and Nineteenth this week. Mr. TeWinkle is a brother of C. W. TeWinkle of Costa Mesa.

C. F. Bates and family of Fairview avenue left on an automobile trip Tuesday for Tia Juana. They will come back in about ten days by way of Escondido, where they will probably stop for a short time.

W. Ellison and family has just returned from a week's trip to Arrowhead Springs and Little Bear.

Ford Mellet and family left yesterday for a two weeks' fishing trip at San Juan Hot Springs.

Earl Lane and family of Pomona and Delaney Jordan and family of Van Nuys are visiting at the home of S. E. Lane for a few days.

Boulevard Obstructed
The boulevard is being partially obstructed today because of the ditches which are being dug for the water mains. It will probably be two months before this work will be entirely completed, but the business district will have an excellent water system when it is done. The pipes range in size from six to sixteen inches and the total cost to the taxpayers will be about $180,000. The latest up-to-date machine is being used to do the digging.

Captain A. Forbes made a business trip to Long Beach and San Pedro Tuesday.

The old school house, which was purchased by L. Jacobson and G. W. Wingham of Santa Ana, has been moved to Seventeenth and Newport streets. The owners are preparing it for use as stores.

George Messenger of Fullerton, purchased five acres in the Newport Mesa tract from H. H. Williamson this week.

Lyman Boomer, sign painter and contractor of Newport Beach, bought a residence on the boulevard tract in Newport Heights.

Electric Service In Mesa Residences

COSTA MESA, Aug. 10.—Electric lighting service is being installed in some thirty homes on Irwin Heights by the Southern California Edison company. It was learned today from W. A. Irwin.

The line to Irwin Heights necessitated the setting by the Edison company of about 36 poles, tapping its main line, and leading to the Heights.

Homes on the tract have been without light since their erection, some four months ago, and the coming of lights is being hailed with delight by the residents. Mr. Irwin is at work on the installation of gas in this tract also.

RACE TRACK AT TIA JUANA IS WON AT LAW

ANAHEIM, Aug. 10.—Josemaria Arguello, 25 years old, for fourteen years a resident of Anaheim, has come into a large fortune, he announced to friends here. His great-grandfather, Governor E. Arguello, who served two years as the chief administrative officer of San Diego in the early days, was given a Spanish grant of eighteen square miles including much of the townsite of Tia Juana. Now after four court actions, lasting over two years in Tia Juana, the numerous heirs have come into their own.

The Anaheim man gets 1400 acres, much of it worth only $50 to $75 per acre, but on it is the Coffroth race track, which he will lease for $10,000, and the Tia Juana Hot Springs with large hotel, saloon, cabaret, etc. This resort, operated by an uncle, Albert Arguello, includes 500 acres of the Anaheim man's share. It may also be leased for $10,000 per annum, but no decision has been reached on this.

There are a number of heirs. Among them is Juan Bandini, of Los Angeles, former well known Anaheim.

Mrs. Arguello, of Anaheim, gets five shares—her own and those of her husband and three children, all deceased.

The San Diego and Arizona railway runs for fifteen miles across the Arguello grant. John D. Spreckels deposited in escrow October 27, 1910, the sum of $82,610 for right of way.

The Anaheim man experienced some difficulty in demonstrating

This Bass Was a Sucker He Bit the Deadly Hook

NEWPORT Aug. 10. 'Twas a mean fish. A 235 pounder, caught by G. G. Shoemaker of Newport Aug. 2, on a large hook. Seated in front of the fish is Orville Hemstreet, of 123 Twenty-fourth street, Orville is 9 years old, and smaller than the fish by a large margin. The fish, a monster sea bass, is believed to be the largest of its kind ever caught with a hook and line.

his right to a share because of a mixup in the records. As an infant, his mother permitted his hair to hang in long curls. It was not until she and Attorney J. B. Cota of San Diego had delved deep in the records that they were able to show the court that the "girl," Maria Josephine Arguello, of the records, was her son, Josemaria Arguello. Although this point was cleared up at the conclusion of the fourth trial last Saturday, it will be a month yet, depending on confirmation from Mexico City, before the Anaheim man actually gets title to his property.

Arguello attended the Anaheim schools and joined the navy from here, being located at Balboa Island during the war.

Anaheim Girls to Camp In Mountains

ANAHEIM, Aug. 10.—Final arrangements are now being made to care for the thirty girls who leave Monday morning, August 13, for Camp Lewis, where they will camp for one week.

The Y. M. C. A. is donating the use of the camp site, which is located about a mile and a half beyond the Modjeska home, and will also have general supervision of the camp.

The camp will be in direct charge of Miss Florence Springer, who will be assisted by several young women from Anaheim. Miss Springer last year was a teacher in the Fremont junior high school and for several years previous was a Y. W. C. A. secretary. She has had considerable experience in conducting girls' camps.

BUILDING FIRM BEGINS ANEW IN ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM, Aug. 10.—Anaheim business men are considering proposals for the reorganization of the Anaheim Building corporation to carry out the extensive building plans formerly outlined by Joe Seigel, it was learned today. The reorganization would include several Los Angeles capitalists who have faith in the future of Anaheim.

The plans are being quietly considered by local men, pending the arrival of A. A. Mills, whose extensive tract was the nucleus around which Seigel formed the Anaheim Building corporation. Conditions of the transaction between Mills and Seigel will not be fully known, it is stated, until Mr. Mills returns from Utah. He is reported to be en route to Anaheim and may arrive today.

"Seigel might have been a dreamer, but he started something which if carried to a successful conclusion, will prove a paying proposition, besides furnishing the city with a great number of homes and increase the population and wealth of Anaheim," said a well known realtor this morning.

In the opinion of a number of realtors and business men who freely expressed themselves, a great producing oil field, within and adjacent to the city limits of Anaheim, is almost an assured possibility. The Standard Oil company, Shell Oil company, General Petroleum and one or two other large companies have leases on hundreds of acres and one or more of these companies, it is felt certain, are sure to bring in a producing oil field.

Do Men Under Thirty Know How to Love?

No! Answers Sarah Bernhardt

And then she tells why in love-letters that burn with passion!

The letters that passed between Du Maupassant and George Sand are not so amazing, so revealing, so intense as the love-letters that the "Divine Sarah" penned to her distinguished lover, Victorien Sardou, the brilliant French Poet!

The very soul of the great Bernhardt flows from her passionate pen!

"In order to love a man we must find him beyond understanding in some way. The minute he tells his real name or lives his real self or expresses his real opinions he explains himself away."

—SARAH BERNHARDT.

"Thou art my tall, lithe-limbed lord," she tell Sardou. But did she ever see him take off his shoes? You will wonder, because in a less poetic mood she says: "I do not believe that any woman ever had exactly the same feeling for her husband after once seeing him take his shoes off. A man is never so like an ape as then."

EVENING SALUTATION

"Christ was the Prince of Peace, and we who seek to render His name glorious must move in the ways of peace and brotherhood and loving service."
—President Harding.

HIS WAS A LOVABLE SOUL

Today, a nation sorrows as the funeral of Warren G. Harding is held. We bow our heads in silent tribute to a man whose life was given in the service of his country.

In these days when we look back upon the career of President Harding, we are prone to remember the kindness of his nature and the warmth of his heart rather than to recount his achievements.

True, we are proud of the things that were done in the two and a half years that Mr. Harding was in office. We point out that it was he who brought about the conference upon world disarmament. We say that his sanity and good common sense have been of inestimable value in settling great economic problems in America.

But, as we stand today in tribute to his memory, we think of President Harding as a friendly, kindly soul. Through his quiet forcefulness, we always felt the magnetism of his likeable personality. He stood the bitterness of his foes and the enthusiasm of his admirers, all with the same friendly calm. We call to mind the words used by Samuel Blythe in describing him, "a fine type of American for President, a human, understandable, modest kindly man, with all the reserve force needed to govern capably."

Today we lay to rest the earthly remains of a man who was honored with the greatest gift within the giving of the American people. He was President of the United States. He was a real man; he was the friend of man.

"There was nothing mythical or mystical in the code of living preached by Jesus Christ. The lessons He taught were so simple and plain, so fashioned as to be understood by the humblest among men, that they appealed to the reasons and emotions of all."—By President Harding.

LIGHTEN THE LOAD

Discussion has been renewed on the subject of lightening the load now placed on the shoulders of the President of the United States. The death of Warren G. Harding, hastened by overwork and continual strain as Chief Executive of the nation, has centered attention again on the fact that the job has become too large for any one man to handle. Woodrow Wilson's long fight for health is another example of breakdown hastened by the exorbitant demands on time and strength made by that office.

No one knows as yet just how this easing of labors may be effected. There are suggestions that the President's position be made more like that of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, and that his cabinet officials take seats in Congress and become directly responsible to Congress for their acts instead of to the President as at present. Separating the ornamental from the executive duties would also help. England's King relieves the Prime Minister of this burden; France's President relieves his Prime Minister.

The increase in the number of cabinet portfolios contemplated is another step in this direction. As the activities of a department become topheavy a new department should be formed as in the separation of the Departments of Commerce and Labor. National needs already seem to be demanding departments of health and of education.

The Constitution of the United States and the form of government outlined therein by the nation's founders stand as marvels of forethought and vision. Yet both are sufficiently flexible to admit of changes as they are needed. It is only the slow-moving methods of a democracy that allow much needed changes to wait as long as they do.

"Men wish to have practised in official life the teachings of brotherhood and friendship and sympathy which have sweetened their own pathways."
—By President Harding.

WATCH JEWEL SMUGGLERS

The government has made tremendous efforts to check the international bootleggers and, although rum running continues, it is apparent that the worst of the epidemic is past. The temporary success of the lawbreakers, however, has lasted long enough to encourage a new evil, and one which promises to be even harder to combat.

The rum runners, according to federal officials, have discovered that jewels can be smuggled into the country more easily and with less trouble than Scotch whisky, and that the profits of the trade are no less attractive. As a result millions in revenue are being lost annually while the jewelers of the country are voluble in their complaint of unfair competition from dealers in stones which have paid no duty.

The American Jewelers' Protective association has gone so far as to volunteer the most complete co-operation with the customs service, and although there are obvious legal obstacles which must be surmounted, some arrangement for co-ordinated effort seems probable.

Unofficial aid has played no small part in the enforcement of the prohibition law, but it has been inspired by sentimental rather than business interest. We may hope that when a big business organization really sets out to work with the government in a case like this the results will be still more gratifying.

"I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood."—By President Harding.

HORSEPOWER IN AUTOS

The rest of the world likes our automobiles. Exports for the past 12 months gained 59 per cent in quantity and 51 per cent in value over the preceding period while sales of parts, tires, engines and accessories kept pace. Ten per cent of all our exports were in the form of motor vehicles.

But Europe, our best customer in this line, does not buy automobiles nowadays in quite the same spirit as does America. A considerable portion of our domestic buyers are interested in horsepower as a major element, and the motor car makers bear this in mind when they advertise. Overseas the high price of gasoline together with the high tax rates, lead every manufacturer to minimize this factor and to figure out the lowest possible rating for his engine.

There the papers are full of four, eight and twelve horsepower cars, advertised with what would seem utter shamelessness to the American accustomed to claim twice or three times the actual development, and explain it on the ground that horsepower can be figured in several ways. And, as a result, the department of commerce is advising American makers to say as little of power and as much of economy as they can when they invade the overseas markets.

Careful nursing is the worst possible treatment for wrath, egotism and grief.

A Noble Courage

Sacramento Bee.

The silent throngs, which have gathered along the route of the train bearing the body of President Harding from California to Washington, are not moved alone by the common sadness which true Americans feel over the untimely death of the nation's chief.

Mingled with mourning for him is a deeper feeling of sympathy for the living, for the woman to whom the dead was not so much the president of the nation as the man whom she had faithfully loved and who had been as faithful to her in sickness and in health, in good fortune and in ill, for more than thirty years.

If strong men find their eyes misty and a lump in their throats as the train goes by, what must be going on in the heart of that woman who is denied even the privilege of hiding her sorrow from the world?

And yet with what womanly fortitude she has borne herself; with what courage has she gone about meeting the daily duties thrust upon her; with what strength of spirit has she met the heart-break—her portion since last Thursday evening.

She has carried the burden of her grief only as a brave and noble woman could. And if one could look into the hearts of these Americans of the mountains and of the plains, of the cities and of the villages and of the farms and prairies, it would be found that they, too, were thinking of the most tragic figure on the train.

And that was not the late president, upon whose peaceful countenance rests the benediction of an eternal sleep. His trials, his rebuffs, his days alike of achievement and frustration are over.

Nothing that human tongue can say ever again will bring either joy or pain to him.

But his wife—is it any wonder that generous-hearted people find their eyes filling as they think of her?

Does this welling up of the sympathy of a great nation reach Mrs. Harding and bring some succor to her sorrow, some new strength for her to meet that loneliness of spirit that death of a loved one brings?

No one knows but she herself. Let it be hoped it may in some slight degree be a consolation and a help.

For she that is left is indeed more to be pitied than he who has been called away.

Men Loved Warren Harding

San Francisco Chronicle.

No more sincere tribute could have been paid to Warren G. Harding than that offered by San Francisco Friday in the spontaneous stoppage of all the city's activities.

It was not an organized effort. There was no time for that. Even the Governor's proclamation of a day of mourning only gave official color to a fact already accomplished. Without premeditation, without the urge of leaders, but spontaneously, out of his own heart, the citizens of San Francisco laid down their customary business and industries and amusements to mourn for their departed chief.

It was a wonderful thing, this shutting down of everything at the word that the President was dead. We cannot remember that anything like it was ever seen before in San Francisco. It was so wholly voluntary, without promotion, and so nearly universal. There was no thought in the city except that a man whom Americans loved and respected lay dead there in his rooms in the hotel.

And with that thought, for work or for play, each man, woman or child, one that few men could evoke. In its spontaneity was its evidence of deep sincerity. And in that, in the love which he drew from all men, is the final proof of the manly, gentle heart of Warren Harding.

Memorials to Mr. Harding

Long Beach Press.

In churches innumerable and in places of assembly, on Sunday, solemn, impressive services were held, memorializing the late President Harding. This tragedy has drawn the American people more closely together and has drawn them closer to God.

Mr. Harding himself was a devout Christian. He relied much upon prayer for guidance. He never discussed a momentous issue without appealing to Deity in connection therewith. He was a thoroughgoing Christian gentleman.

It is fitting that, in temples of worship, the passing of this great and good man should be memorialized. It is inspiring, in this solemn hour to know that millions of followers of the Christ are lauding the virtues of this eminent departed Christian and are renewing their dedication to the principles and precepts of the Man of Galilee.

Endurance Tests of Strength

San Francisco Chronicle.

The inhabitants of any town or city which will permit within its boundaries such outrageous and systematic brutality to dumb animals as is shown in the endurance test of horses now going on in the midcontinent are barbarians and of a very low order.

This means the people of Colorado Springs, Colorado.

A few months ago the Nation was shamed and disgusted with several endurance tests of men and women, which cost some lives and shortened those of all participants. They proved nothing except the stupidity of the participants, the brutality of the spectators and the indifference of the local public.

But, outrageous as such exhibitions are when human beings voluntarily engage in them, they do not touch the depths of degradation and degeneracy which are reached when dumb animals—horses, the faithful servants of mankind—are compelled by whip and spur to struggle on till they die.

There were nineteen entries of these poor horses at Colorado Springs. On August 2 seven remained. One struggled till he died. One dropped out by reason of a heart attack and is very likely dead. None are likely to be of any use hereafter.

Editorial Shorts

He joins the patriot dead. Henceforth, he is one of the nation's heroes, for he gave his life for the land he loved and shed quite as really and as completely as it on the field of battle. He fought, not the physical enemies of America, but he fought for the physical and moral and mental and spiritual development of the people of the United States, and in that battle he gave to the limit. Now, he, too, belongs to the ages.—San Bernardino Sun.

The Last Tribute

Harding's Last Words
As Private Citizen

How President Harding as president strove to fulfill the ideals he cherished as a private citizen is forcibly shown in the following statement, made by him March 3, 1922, just before he was inaugurated—his last words as a private citizen of the United States:

This republic cannot and will not fail if each of us does his part. If we but work, are thrifty and seek that understanding which reveals mutuality of interest, no differences can long abide.

Our great assurance at home lies in an intelligent, resolute people, in a land unravaged by war, at enmity with no people, envying none, coveting nothing, seeking no territory, striving for no glories which do not become a righteous nation.

If there is one thing in my heart more than another it is that at the end of the coming administration there remains the America we inherited from the fathers without the surrender of a single part. I only wish for our America a soul truly American.

There is a new world relationship and when the next administration comes into power we're going to play our part. We're going to ask for nations associated together in justice; but it must be an association which surrenders nothing of American freedom.

Our governmental good fortune does not lie in any surrender at either end of the avenue (at either the Capitol or the White House at either end of Pennsylvania avenue in Washington), but in the co-ordination and co-operation which becomes the two branches in a great and truly representative popular government.

I would rather have the respect and confidence of my hometown people, who have known me intimately all my life, than to have been elected president. And I have a feeling that so long as I can continue to hold their respect and confidence I will be credited at least with doing my best for all the American people.

When I am through down at Washington I want to be able to come back home and again be a part of the home community.

Farewell Message

The concluding words of President Warren G. Harding's message, read to the Hollywood Commandery, Knights Templar, by Secretary Christian on August 2, the day of the President's death, breathe the spirit of love so characteristic of Mr. Harding:

These words will be cherished not only as a farewell message but as typical of President Harding:

I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood. Science and genius are lending their aid to the removal of the obstacles to intercourse and attending understanding among the peoples of the world. We do rise to heights, at times, when we look for the good rather than the evil in others, and give consideration to the views of all. The inherent love of fellowship is banding men together, and when envy and suspicion are vanished, fraternity records a triumph, and brotherhood brings new blessings to men and to peoples in the larger sense.

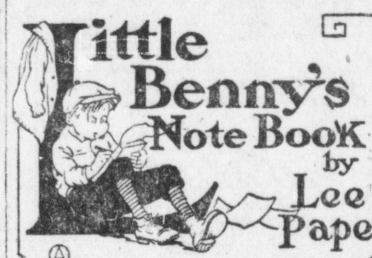

Worth While Verse

OUTDOORS

My house is carpeted with grass—
For roof it has the sky,
Green walls and overhanging eaves
Tree branches are, screened thick with leaves,
To shelter where I lie.

The deep hush of the woods bides there—
No alien sound is heard;
Sometimes for company, flits by
A lovely, painted butterfly,
A fairy hummingbird!

And best of all, though many share
This house that seems my own,
God's out of doors is built so high,
Its rooms so many are, that I
May live in mine alone!

An Outline of Life of Mr. Harding

Warren Gamaliel Harding, 29th president of the United States, was in every respect a self-made man. Like Abraham Lincoln and many of his other distinguished predecessors, he worked his way up from a little log cabin to the White House.

The story of his success reads, indeed, like a Horatio Alger or Oliver Optic novel for boys.

Born of poor parents, he put himself through college, fought an uphill battle to become a successful newspaper editor and publisher, gained leadership in politics of his home community and state, and finally attained his boyhood ambition.

For Harding, as a lad of 12, had promised his chums he some day would be the nation's chief executive.

Harding was born on his grandfather's farm, near Blooming Grove, Morrow county, Ohio, November 2, 1855.

His father, Dr. George Tyrone Harding, still living, was a country physician whose practice was so small that he was forced to work in the fields to make ends meet.

Mrs. Phoebe Elizabeth Dickerson Harding, his mother, was a home-loving, industrious woman of deep religious convictions. She professed the Adventist creed. From her Warren inherited many of the traits so characteristic of him in later life.

Both father and mother came of a long line of sturdy pioneers. Dr. Harding was of Scotch descent, while his wife was of Dutch stock.

Warren was the eldest of eight children. When he was 5, the family moved to the neighboring village of Caledonia, Ohio.

At 4, he had learned to read, and was memorizing long poems. He always was anxious to "speak his piece" at neighboring gatherings.

But he wasn't the "goody, goody" type. He could swim farther and dive deeper than any of his chums at the "ol' swimmin' hole" in Whetstone creek. And it seems he could chew tobacco better than any of them.

When he was 14, a lanky, ungainly youth more than six feet tall, he matriculated for an academic course at Ohio Central college in Iberia. That long since has closed its doors.

Several times, when he couldn't find enough odd jobs he was forced to quit school. But always, after something turned up, he would return to his books. He was graduated with a B. S. degree when he was 17.

For a year he taught school. Then he read law for another year. His father bought the Marion (O.) Star, then a struggling little weekly paper, at a sheriff's sale.

Warren, in college, edited a school paper. He became editor of the Star, which his father presented to him.

Against great financial odds, he conducted the paper for some time. But he was forced eventually to sell it. He took a reporter's position on the Marion Mirror, but political differences with the owner resulted in his discharge.

Harding and Jack Warwick, now prominent in Ohio newspaper circles, later scraped together $200 and bought the Star again. Soon after Harding took over Warwick's interest.

With the assistance of his wife, formerly Miss Florence Elizabeth Kling, whom he married in 1891 against her father's wishes, Harding transformed it into a powerful small-town daily.

Meanwhile he was dabbling in politics. In 1900 he became a state senator. He served two terms. Then he was inducted into the lieutenant governor's office. In 1910 he ran for governor, but was defeated.

He rose rapidly in Republican councils. In 1914 the people of his natal state sent him to the United States senate.

Six years later saw him put forth as a compromise candidate for the Republican presidential nomination at the convention in Chicago. He won the nomination and rode into the White House that swept the country six months later. James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, was his Democratic opponent.

A mighty task confronted Warren G. Harding when he entered the White House.

America had entered upon the period of reconstruction following the greatest war in all history. It still technically was at war with Germany and Austria, although hostilities had ceased more than two years before, for no treaty had been signed between it and these nations.

There were problems of employment and national finances that must be attended to immediately.

Harding, with the same indomitable spirit that carried him through the storms of early life, put his shoulder to the wheel of state. Against the advice of his personal physician, Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, he was at his desk for months from early in the morning until midnight. There were times even when he was still fumbling through his papers until almost daybreak.

The world conference on disarmament probably will go down in history as the greatest achievement of his administration.

But Harding's fight for an American ship subsidy, for the establishment of a world court of justice, for the preservation of the 18th or prohibition amendment for the amicable settlement of industrial differences on the railroads and in the mines will be remembered long after his name has become only a memory.

JOHNNIE of the CIRCUS and his CUFFY BEAR ~
~ By ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

Johnnie rode with his uncle in the parade.

He imagined himself in his uncle's shiny hat and clothes.

SIGNOR BRUNO'S MIGHTY EUROPEAN CIRCUS

Johnnie Green saw very little of the parade, because he rode beside his uncle at the very head of the whole procession. But he didn't mind that. Somewhere behind him he could hear the band playing. And out of the corner of his eye he could see how the small boys that lined the curb were staring at him. He knew they would have liked to be in his place.

He tried to act as if he had ridden in circus parades all his life. And there was only one thing he could wish for which was a tall, thin, silk hat like the one his Uncle Jim wore.

After the parade came dinner. After dinner came the big show. It was—well, it was the finest show Johnnie Green had ever seen. There was only one trouble with it. It was over too soon. And somehow a big lump came up into Johnnie's throat when he found himself shaking hands again with his uncle and his aunt. But then Uncle Jim said something to Mr. and Mrs. Green—something that drove the lump back where it belonged.

"The show moves on to our next town tonight," Uncle Jim announced. "But tomorrow's Sunday. And Mary and I are going to stay over and drive out to your place and spend the day with you—that is, if you want us."

Of course they did.

"By the way," said the hired man over his shoulder, to Mrs.

Green, as he was driving home from the show, "Your brother hasn't really changed his name."

"I declare! I forgot to ask him about that," Johnnie's mother exclaimed. "But what do you mean?"

"I asked a clown," said the hired man. "He told me that Bruno is Eretalian for Brown. And Signor—well, that's just plain Mister, in United States."

Right after breakfast the next morning, which was Sunday, Johnnie Green went out in front of the farmhouse and perched himself on the stone wall, where he could look down the long stretch of road which passed the gristmill and finally lost itself to view in the woods beyond.

For more than an hour Johnnie watched and waited. And that was most unusual, for a boy that never wanted to be still. But at last a pair of cream colored horses popped out of the woods and came trotting up the rise.

The moment Johnnie Green spied them he knew that they didn't belong in those parts. He had seen them at the circus. He had called them "buckskins." And Uncle Jim had spoken of them as his "Arabians."

Johnnie Green hopped off the stone wall with a whoop and ran for the house.
